

Cordell Hull Seems Loser In Feud With Peek Over Boosting Trade By Barter

WASHINGTON—For one year a feud has been raging between Cordell Hull of Tennessee and George Peek, veteran of a score of battles with the Brain Trust and Henry Wallace.

Now, for the first time it looks as if mountaineer Secretary of State was losing out. Peek has now won the first round in the battle of extending credits to Germany. He has also won on the more important principle of barter and quotas versus unrestricted trade.

Unrestricted trade has been Hull's passion, and he has stood out for it valiantly. He contends that exchange restrictions, quotas, other trade barriers merely force commerce out of normal channels, tend to throttle it in the long run.

Peek, on the other hand, contends we should do business with those who do business with us.

He put this to a test recently through sales of cotton to Germany. A deal is now arranged whereby Germany buys 500,000 bales, paying 25 per cent in cash and 75 per cent in frozen German marks which cannot be shipped to the United States.

This latter is most important. Since the marks cannot be shipped here, American business men must buy German goods in order to secure the use of the marks.

Thus the plan boils down to main, unadorned barter. Either the United States buys German goods or else it doesn't get the remainder of the money for the 500,000 bales of cotton.

Realizing what a bargain this is, the Germans are willing to pay three cents more than the world price.

Imagine Mr. Hull's mortification! Imagine also, his mortification at the fact that Brazil, just a few weeks ago, turned the Germans down on this same proposition. They gave their veto out of deference to Mr. Hull whose views they knew, and because they were negotiating a commercial treaty with the United States.

And having deferred to Mr. Hull, they turn round and find the United States doing exactly the same sort of thing which Brazil refused to do.

No Change

One of the women reporters put Mrs. Roosevelt on the spot at her weekly press conference. But the First Lady met the challenge with her usual aplomb.

"Mrs. Roosevelt," inquired the correspondent, "what will be the policy toward Mrs. Mitchell?"

"There will be no change," was the prompt and quiet answer.

Note: Mrs. Arthur H. Mitchell is the wife of the recently elected Negro Democratic Representative from Chicago. Her husband defeated the Republican incumbent, Oscar De Priest, also a Negro. Mrs. De Priest was invited to White House socials by Mrs. Roosevelt for the wives of members of the House.

Republican Leader

"Bertie" Snell will continue to marshal Republican battalions of the House.

Despite his personal unpopularity with a considerable section of his cohorts, despite the strident demands from non-congressional Young Republican chieftains that he be ousted, the dapper little cheesemaker of Potsdam, New York, will be re-elected party

TAX MEASURE SIGNED TODAY BY GOV. WHITE

Sales Tax and Other Bills to Raise Finances for State

PERSONAL VICTORY Intangible Rate Boosted By Solons

COLUMBUS, Dec. 13.—Governor George White today affixed his signature to the sales tax bill, adopted by the state legislature as the keystone of a gigantic tax-raising program to provide funds for the relief of the schools and local subdivisions.

The measure, which is expected to raise $56,000,000 in new revenue, was signed at 11:13 a. m. Signing of the bill took place in the presence of State Representatives Tom Jones (R) of Pomeroy, Joseph Cassidy (R) of Cleveland, and State Tax Commissioner Carlton Dargusch.

The governor also signed the Mosier bill, providing for a three per cent tax on gross receipts from theatre and amusement admissions, which were exempt from the sales tax measure, and the McCluskey bill increasing the excise tax on utilities one per cent.

COLUMBUS, Dec. 13.—Ohio's new 3 per cent bracket retail sales tax will go into effect about the middle of January, perhaps on Jan. 14, the day Martin L. Davey is inaugurated as governor. Gov. George White's taxation experts stated today.

It will remain in effect only during 1935, unless re-enacted by the General Assembly. Latest estimate by Carlton S. Dargusch, state tax commissioner, of the sales tax' anticipated productivity in revenue was $56,000,000. Dargusch took issue with other tax experts, including George Sheridan of the Ohio Council of Retail Merchants, who envisioned proceeds of near $80,000,000. The tax commissioner said they failed to take into account exemptions. Twenty-five per cent of all retail sales are exempted, he said.

WIFE OF FORMER OFFICIAL CALLED

Funeral arrangements for Mrs. Zelma Brundige Lewis, 28, the wife of Charles H. Lewis, of Harpster, former Ohio lieutenant governor, will be held at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Brundige near Kingston tomorrow afternoon, it was announced today.

Mrs. Lewis, who was married to the former lieutenant-governor on Aug. 22 at Harpster, died in Grant hospital during the night while undergoing an abdominal operation. She had been in the hospital about four weeks.

A graduate of the University Hospital school of nurses, Columbus, Mrs. Lewis is survived by her parents, two brothers, Thomas of Columbus and Floyd, of near Kingston, and two sisters, Gertrude, a student at Ohio Wesleyan University and Francis, a teacher in the Ashland schools.

ASHVILLE GIRL, 9, LOSES RIGHT EYE

Ruth Ann Thomas, nine-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Erville Thomas, of Ashville, who received treatment several weeks ago at Berger hospital for an injured right eye suffered when a stone was thrown by a playmate, underwent an emergency operation at the hospital Wednesday night for the removal of her eye.

FATE OF SEVEN IS NEARING JURY

Baby Boy is Born Dope Addict

Deadly influence of narcotics is revealed with the birth of a baby boy to Mrs. Jack Lorraine, of Seattle, Wash. Physicians say the baby, shown with his mother, was born with an addiction for morphine. The mother admitted having used morphine for several years. Gradually reduced doses for the infant were prescribed.

COUNTY ASSESSED $712.70 FOR CONSERVANCY EXPENSE

Auditors of 17 Counties To Receive Certification; Franklin Leads With $7,036.55; Needed For Expenses.

Certification of $712.70, the amount due as Pickaway-co's share for the financing of preliminary surveys of the Scioto-Sandusky conservancy district, was in the mail today to Clifford M. White, county auditor.

Similar certifications were sent to auditors of the other 16 counties. Conservancy district officials, who estimated that $25,000 would be necessary before a decision on the $36,000,000 water conservation plan could be obtained from PWA officials in Washington, planned to collect $15,000 as soon as possible, with the remaining $10,000 to be collected early next year.

PAY EXPENSES
The initial expenditures, authorized by the conservancy court of common pleas judges from the various counties to be affected by the chain of lakes which would be created along the Scioto and Sandusky rivers under the plan, will pay expenses of district officials and engineers preparing the project for presentation in Washington.

A force of 25 engineers has been at work for nearly two weeks surveying possible sites for the 10 dams which will form the basis of the flood, drought, and soil erosion control program. A survey is also to be made of the diversion cut which will connect the Scioto and Sandusky rivers near their sources.

Amounts levied from the various counties were based on the tax valuation of the counties or sections of counties to be directly benefited by the project.

TO BE RETURNED
If PWA officials ultimately approve the plan, the $25,000 to be collected from the counties for initial expenses will be returned in the federal grants financing the project. Under the present plans, Franklin-co will pay $7,036.55 of the $15,000, the largest single county share. Vinton-co, where only three townships will be benefited, will pay $20.38.

The amounts levied on the 15 other counties in the district were: Crawford, $818.10; Delaware, $461.04; Fayette, $451.10; Highland, $216.50; Madison, $386.56; Marion, $943.25; Pike, $185.92; Ross, $765.25; Sandusky, $370.82; Morrow, $209.07; Scioto, $941.14; Seneca, $678.48; Union, $342.91; Wyandot, $460.23.

REICHE ESTATE

Her surviving husband, M. F. Reiche, Jr., and Allen Thornton have been appointed administrators with the will annexed of the estate of the late Margaret D. Reiche according to the papers filed in probate court.

The entire estate is left to the husband. It is valued at $13,500, $10,500 of which is real estate. The will was written Nov. 28, 1932 and was witnessed by Mrs. Amos Wilson and E. A. Brown.

Appraisers are O. S. Howard, E. S. Neuding and F. R. Nicholas.

YOUNG MOTHER OF 8 IS BURNED BY STOVE FIRE

Mrs. Viva Costlow of Ashville Dies in Hospital of Injuries

OLDEST CHILD IS 13 Believe Cobs In Cook Stove Exploded

Mrs. Viva Margaret Costlow, 35-year-old mother of eight small children, was dead today of burns she suffered Wednesday afternoon at her home in Ashville when her clothing was ignited by fire from a cook stove. It was thought cobs in the stove exploded.

Her face and numerous parts of her body were burned. Mrs. Costlow, wife of Estle Costlow, was taken to St. Francis hospital, Columbus, after the tragic accident where she succumbed at 5 a. m. Thursday.

Her children are: Clarabelle, 13; Mabel, 12; Helen, 9; Viola May, 7; Donald, 5; Mary Ellen, 4; Evelyn, 14 months, and Joseph, four weeks old. A brother, Howard Goachee, also survives.

She was born Dec. 20, 1898, in Harrison-twp, a daughter of Ben and Clara Goachee.

The funeral will be Saturday at 10 a. m. at the E. F. Schlegel Funeral parlors with Rev. C. W. Hoffman of the Ashville Methodist church officiating. Burial will be in the South Bloomfield cemetery.

CALL PASTOR TO ASHVILLE

Rev. George Troutman Invited To Accept Pulpit of Lutheran Church.

Rev. George L. Troutman, junior pastor of Trinity Lutheran church, this city, has received a call from the Ashville Lutheran church voted at a congregational meeting last Sunday.

Rev. Troutman has assisted his father, Dr. G. J. Troutman in the pulpit of the local church for nearly six years.

The local congregation will take action on the call at a meeting Sunday, Dec. 2.

Rev. Troutman, if the call is accepted, would succeed Rev. H. H. Glick who recently accepted a call to the Bucyrus Lutheran church.

Rev. William G. Sott, stewardship secretary for the American Lutheran church, was the supply minister at Sunday's services in Ashville.

Hospital News

Mrs. Lester Coate and baby son were taken to their home on W. Union-st. from Berger hospital, Wednesday.

Abe Dixon, E. Main-st., who underwent a minor operation at Berger hospital recently was taken to his home Wednesday.

Friday Old Toy Day in Schools

Friday is to be "old toy day" in the city's schools. Announcement was made in all the buildings today that children who have old toys, discarded or in need of repair, should take them to school Friday where they will be called for by firemen.

Members of the fire department are doing a fine job in repairing toys to distribute to needy children at Christmas time. Many, many more toys are needed before all the needy children can be provided some Christmas cheer.

Surely every child in school has some kind of a toy he is tired of. Remember there are many children in the city who have no toys at all and they would be made happy if you would let them have those for which you no longer care.

FIREMEN TO CALL

The firemen will call at the schools sometime Friday to gather the toys brought by the children. It is hoped there will be many of them.

There are many persons in Circleville who would like to buy toys

Rebels Murder Couple

Paterson, N. J. Man-Wife Found Slain by Chinese; Baby Daughter Missing.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 13.—The brutal murder of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Stam of Paterson, N. J., members of the China Inland mission, by Chinese Communist bandits was revealed today when their bodies were found by the roadside a few miles from the scene of their kidnapping.

The fate of their infant daughter Helen, seized with them at China Inland mission headquarters at Ssingteh, southern Anhwei province, was not known.

FOUND BY SEARCHERS

The bodies, apparently flung into a ditch alongside the highway leading out of Tsingteh, were found by members of a searching party who had scoured the region since the missionary family was seized early this week.

Tsingteh has long been one of the strongholds of the Communist rebel forces which the Nanking government for years has been attempting to obliterate.

The United States legation here, informed of the outrage, immediately protested to the Nanking government.

Grave fears were felt over the safety of the infant, as it appeared incredible the bandits would slay her parents and spirit the baby away unharmed.

NO RANSOM ASKED

So far as could be learned, no demand for ransom had been received by associates of the slain couple, although this was the procedure usually followed in kidnappings of this sort.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—The United States expects the Chinese government to take immediate steps to apprehend and execute the Chinese bandits responsible for the brutal murder of the American missionary couple, Mr. (Continued On Page Eight)

SENATOR M'ADOO STRICKEN ON TOUR

MANILA, P. I., Dec. 13.—U. S. Senator William Gibbs McAdoo of California today was stricken ill while touring the Philippine islands in company with Senators Tydings of Maryland and McKellar of Tennessee.

Word of Senator McAdoo's illness was contained in a brief dispatch from Col. L. F. Manley, U. S. A., who accompanied the Senators to Iloilo, on their tour of the southern provinces of the islands.

Col. Manley's dispatch, addressed to Governor General Frank Murphy, did not describe the nature of the Senator's illness but said he was being rushed to Manila tomorrow morning by airplane, at the order of his physician.

Senator McAdoo left here early today, flying in an army airplane.

The senator, when he left here, apparently was in the best of health having attended parties on Sunday and Monday nights, where it was reported he danced every dance.

WIRES CUT, BULLETS TERRORIZE RESIDENTS

Small Safe Looted of $500 As Main Vault Is Undamaged; Sheriff Believes Shortage of Nitro-Glycerine Saved Bulk of Money

A band of daring bandits believed to number between five and eight and with their plans well organized terrorized Adelphi, Rosco village of some 400 inhabitants, early today and completely wrecked the brick building of the Adelphi Banking Co.

The robbers escaped with loot estimated at $500 after they had blasted a small safe. O. B. Armstrong, the bank cashier, estimated the loot. The outlaws were frustrated in their efforts to enter the big vault which contained a large sum of money when their "soup," a combination containing nitro-glycerine, was believed to have given out after they blasted through several doors leading into the main vault.

which they had mixed their blasting solution and that a fuse and caps were found on the floor of the badly demolished bank building. A pick left by the bandits was also found in the building. Soap with which the blasting solution was packed against the safe was thrown all over the walls, apparently by the blast.

Pieces of the safe from which the loot was obtained were thrown across the street by the blast. An adding machine and other equipment used in the bank were ruined. While the loot amounted to $500 damage to the bank and its interior will reach several times that amount. No repairs were being made today until an insurance adjuster had made his inspection.

BANK GUARDED

Guards from the office of Sheriff Jos. Vincent of Rosco, Deputy Armstrong and deputies from the office of Sheriff Boswell of Hocking-co remained in the village today to guard the bank against any foray the outlaws might attempt.

It is believed the robbers took possession of the town about 1 a. m. They were first detected about that time after a shot was heard and the electric light which burns all night in the center of the town was shattered. Attempts of residents to call for help by using telephones calling for help disclosed that all methods of communication were cut down. Telephone lines into Laureville, Logan, Chillicothe, Circleville, and even south of Laureville on the road to Athens were slashed by the robbers.

Communication was restored into the village early this morning.

The bandits drove into town in a passenger car and a trucklike conveyance, villagers said.

TOWN IN TERROR
The first blast was set off about 3 a. m. and it was followed at intervals by about five or six other blasts prior to 5:30 a. m. Cancelled checks were found scattered all over the floor.

First news of the invasion reached the outside world when an Adelphi citizen drove his automobile to a farm house several miles away and called Sheriff Vincent.

Nearly all the residents of the village after discovery that the corner light had been broken and that lights in the bank were burning remained indoors. Several left their homes but returned in only a moment after bandits on guard had taken pot-shots at them. Dr. E. Hemminger, who lives across the street from the bank, started to leave his home but a bandit bullet drove him back to cover.

Nearly every one in the town was terrorized. They knew the bank was being robbed, many who lived near by could see men in the bank hurriedly trying to enter the main vault; they could also see four or five men standing outside the building with drawn guns in their hands.

The robbers made their getaway without any person getting a good description of any of them. Homer Rinehart of Chillicothe, who accompanied Sheriff Vincent, early today had been unable to obtain fingerprints from the bank interior. There were only minor clues left behind.

The district south and east of Adelphi would provide an adequate hideout for any number of daring men after such a robbery. Many of the densely wooded sections would provide mighty strongholds.

Adelphi residents told officers that they had seen no suspicious characters in the vicinity lately although it was planned to try to find traces of a crew of log buyers who has been in the vicinity for several days and had gone today without paying for logs reported to have been purchased.

George Armstrong is president of the bank.

WOMAN ARRESTED FOR SHOPLIFTING
Mrs. Mary Haynes, 18, is the seventh person arrested by local authorities in the past two days for "shoplifting." Six others, one man and five youths, are still being held pending hearings.

Mrs. Haynes who lives on Hayward-st. was arrested Wednesday afternoon by Deputy Bryan Caster and Officer William McCrady. A red dress stolen from the J. C. Penny store was recovered.

Ed Rutter, this city, was released from the county jail Thursday after serving $10 and costs for intoxication.

MRS. DRUM, 69, DIES

Funeral will be conducted Friday at 1 p. m. at the Tarlton church with Rev. Spurgeon Metzler officiating for Mrs. Elizabeth Ellen Drum, 69, wife of Eber Drum who died Wednesday at 5:30 p. m. at her home in Washington-twp.

Besides her husband she leaves two stepchildren, Fred of near Tullon and Mrs. Caroline Tuller of Dublin.

Burial will be in Tarlton cemetery by H. E. Defenbaugh and Son.

FIRE DEATH TOLL SET AT 59

RUINS YIELD 20 VICTIMS

18 Others Known To Be Missing; Ill-fated Building Known Fire Trap.

LANSING, Mich., Dec. 13.—With 20 bodies recovered, and 18 other persons known to be missing the death toll of the Kerns hotel fire was officially estimated today at 59.

The estimate was made by Coroner Ray Gorsline, while crews of firemen and PWA workmen continued their gruesome search of the ruins, and a deep sea diver sought the bodies of additional victims who jumped from rear windows of the hotel a certain, but easter, death in icy Grand river.

Five of the charred bodies taken from ruins of the four-story, 256-room hotel, cannot be identified.

The identified dead include a clergyman from Iowa, and his wife; the manager of the hotel; and six members of the Michigan state legislature which was called to the capital for a special session Monday.

Meanwhile investigation of the tragic blaze which swept through the old wood and brick building Tuesday morning, revealed that fire and police authorities had long considered the hotel a fire trap; that 15 minutes passed between discovery of the blaze and the fire department's first alarm; and that the hotel switchboard may have been out of order when the fire broke out.

"We knew of the danger at the Kerns," said Fire Chief Hugo Delfs, "it was the same danger that always exists in buildings with walls and floors of wood. We inspected it regularly, and found it in compliance with the statutes and ordinances governing fire escapes and fire-fighting equipment. That is all we could do."

"I don't suppose it would be feasible to tear down every old wooden hotel in the country, but legislators might make sprinkler systems mandatory and compel installation of some kind of escape device in every room."

Lansing has an ordinance which makes fireproof construction mandatory in all buildings erected since 1927. But the ordinance did not apply to old structures such as the Kerns which was built in 1908.

ASHVILLE SCHOOL NOTES

For the past two weeks the third grade has had 100 per cent attendance.

Last week grade four had a perfect attendance report.

The fourth grade children are keeping a record of the weights and heights of members of the group. They are noting those people who are underweight.

In reading class we are reading and dramatizing "The Christmas Fairy and Scrooge" adapted from Dickens' "A Christmas Carol."

The sixth grade was pleased to have 12 of the mothers attend their Thanksgiving party last week.

The pupils of grade six have completed their plaster paris map of North America. They have placed small boats on the waters to show the various products transported to and from our continent.

When the automobile race which has been conducted in the sixth grade spelling class, ended last week Billy Cloud's blue auto came in first. Other students in his row were Mary McNeal, Billy Scoles, Betty Harris, June Snyder and Ralph Miller. Each pupil was awarded for his merit.

The grade teachers are beginning a study of orthography under the direction of Supt. Higley. The teachers meet once every two weeks. At the last meeting Miss Scothorn gave a report on "History," and Miss Ferguson on "Reading."

The seventh and eighth grade boys have been practicing basketball the last two weeks. They would like to schedule some games with other county seventh and eighth grade teams. Any team wishing to play, should call or write Edwin Irwin.

The Ashville high school boys' and girls' basketball teams played hosts to the New Holland boys' and girls' teams on Friday, Dec. 7th. The boys' game started out slow with defense. New Holland took the lead with a free throw, but Ashville came back with a field goal after which New Holland also scored from the field leading Ashville 4-3. Ashville then took the lead and kept it for the remainder of the game. Ashville led 11-4 at the first quarter, 12 to 9 at the half, 18 to 14 at the end of the third quarter and 29 to 16 at the end of the game.

The girls' game furnished plenty of excitement, too, although the final score was 21 to 14 in favor of Ashville. The New Holland girls had a big advantage in size but Ashville girls more than made up for this in speed and team work.

Griffith was the official and as usual called them close which is as it should be.

This week Ashville entertains Salters Creek.

The Ashville school music department furnished orchestra, chorus and solo numbers for the county teachers' meeting held in Ashville last Saturday. The soloists were Roberta Cromley, instrumental, and Maxene Canter, vocal.

P. T. A. furnished a luncheon for which they were highly complimented.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Leist and Mrs. William Waldeich motored to Lancaster Sunday where they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Gearhart.

DARBY-TWP SCHOOL NEWS

The girl's basketball team was defeated last Friday evening by the Pickaway girls, the score being 17-12. The boys won by a 11-22 count. The New Holland game will be Wednesday, December 12. On Wednesday, December 19, we will meet Pickaway on our own floor.

The games will be called at 7:30 and price of admission will be 10¢ for all school children and 20¢ for adults.

A game with the Alumni of the school will be played on Jan. 4.

Do not forget the Christmas program on Friday, December 21 at 7:30. Rooms one and two will present the Christmas Cantata, "The Christmas Spirit" and Rooms three and four will present the Christmas Pageant "The Shepherd's Trail."

A Christmas program is being arranged for December 21 by the committee in charge of the high school chapel program. Rev. Shepherd of Harrisburg will give the address. Miss DeMuth is the faculty adviser.

ROBTOWN

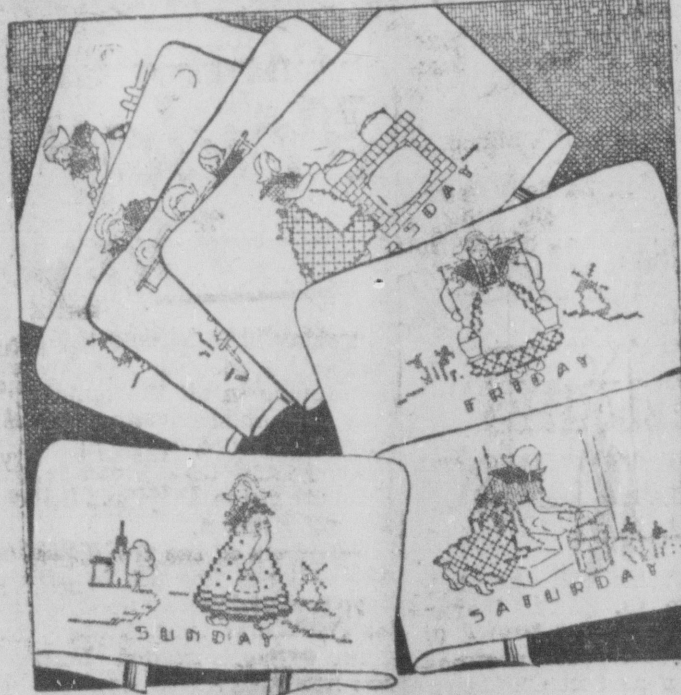

Rev. Smith and wife of Ashville were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Rob Hott and family.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Wigginton of Washington, C. H. were Sunday guests of their relatives Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Rowe and family.

Miss Otis Peters of Columbus spent Wednesday of last week with her sister, Mrs. J. R. Hott.

WATCH KIDNEYS SAME AS BOWELS

Wash Out Your 79,200 Feet of Kidney Tubes

Your bowels contain only 27 feet of intestine, yet the kidneys contain nearly 80 million tiny tubes or filters which would measure 79,200 feet if laid end to end. Therefore, it is just as important to watch the kidneys as the bowels. Kidneys are working all the time and are Nature's chief way of taking the acids and poisonous waste out of the blood.

Healthy persons pass 3 pints a day thru the bladder which contains nearly 4 pounds of waste matter. If you pass less than this amount, your 79,200 feet of kidney tubes may be clogged with poisonous waste. This is the danger signal and may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and vitality, getting up nights, lumbago, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness.

Kidneys should be watched closely and need clearing out the same as bowels. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS, an old prescription, which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. They give quick relief and will help to wash out your 79,200 feet of kidney tubes.

But don't take chances with strong drugs and so-called "kidney cures" which claim to fix you up in 15 minutes. Your common sense will tell you that this is impossible. Treatments of this nature may seriously injure and irritate delicate tissues. Insist on DOAN'S PILLS, the old reliable relief that contains no "dope" or habit-forming drugs. Be sure you get DOAN'S PILLS at your druggist.

SEWING CLUB HAS LIGHTFUL PARTY

Members of the Art sewing club and several guests enjoyed a light Christmas party Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Charles Imler, E. Main-st. A luncheon was served at noon and the party continued with pleasant hours following were spent in sewing. Exchange of gifts followed a merry hour and refreshments were served later in the afternoon. Several guests remained for an evening of cards. The annual affair was enjoyed by Mrs. Marion, Mrs. Charles, Mrs. Harry Dreisbach, Mrs. Fred Newhouse, Mrs. Wade, Mrs. Roy Groce, Mrs. Earl, Mrs. Chester Valentine, Mrs. Laura Mantle, Mrs. Frank, Mrs. Kreider, Mrs. Cyril McCreary and daughter Ledoris and Mrs. L. A. Mithoff of Cleveland. Mrs. Imler will entertain the members at their January meeting.

BRIDGE CLUB ENJOYS CHRISTMAS PARTY

Mrs. Harold Grant entertained the members of her bridge club at their annual Christmas party Wednesday evening at her home on N. Court-st. A delicious dinner was served at 6:30 o'clock at beautifully appointed tables. Covers were laid for Mrs. G. D. Phillips, Mrs. Allen Thornton, Mrs. Charles Fullen, Mrs. Mary Beck, Mrs. John Bell, Mrs. Ralph Bell, Miss Winifred Parrett, Miss Bess Fry, Miss Marvonne Holderman, Miss Florence Dunton, Mrs. L. E. Davison and Mrs. Clarence Hott. Bridge was enjoyed after the gay dinner hour and prizes went to Miss Holderman and Mrs. Fullen. Mrs. Beck will be hostess at the next club meeting. Mrs. Henry Mason and Mrs. William Betts received favors for high score at the conclusion of the enjoyable bridge party at the American Hotel Coffee shop Wednesday evening given by Mrs. Ralph Leach, Northridge-rd. Guests at the party were members of the hostess' card club. Two tables were in play and refreshments were served at the conclusion of the game.

Household Arts

by Alice Brooks
Here are the Three Little Pigs

These are the Three Little Pigs ready to be placed under the Christmas tree. And you can leave making them to the minute—they're made of but pieces! The arms and legs are left floppy, making the little a far more interesting toy otherwise. The clothes, of course, are removable—they too made in a jiffy. Do them in any check, plaid or cotton print and you'll have a trio of toys that will take any youngster's eye at once. Each pig measures about 10 inches when finished. In pattern 5271 you will find a pattern for the pig and all the clothes; directions for making them and material requirements. To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to The Herald Household Arts Dept., 124 W. Main-st., Circleville, O.

LUTHERAN LADIES MEET WEDNESDAY

Fifty members and a large number of guests attended the December meeting of the Ladies' society of Trinity Lutheran church Wednesday afternoon in the Parish house. Rev. George L. Troutman presided at the session in the absence of the president and vice president. Following a devotional period the missionary paper was read by Mrs. H. F. Gall. The program consisted of a group of Christmas carols sung by Mrs. George Troutman accompanied by Miss Mary Heffner and a collection of Christmas readings given by Mrs. Denny Pickens. A delectable lunch was served at prettily decorated tables in keeping with the season. The committee included Mrs. H. M. Crites, chairman, Mrs. Frank Kline Sr., Mrs. Ed Valentine, Mrs. John Maiden, Mrs. Margaret Leist, Miss Ida Hoffman, Miss Susie Wilson, Miss Gertrude Pontius and Mrs. John Walters.

REV. RADEBAUGH REUNITS STOUT-BADGLEY NUPTIALS

Rev. E. Radebaugh pastor of the Evangelical church read the ceremony uniting in marriage Miss Gwendolyn Badgley of Chillicothe and Mr. Lawrence Stout of this city. The vows were exchanged at 8:30 o'clock Wednesday evening at the officiating minister's home on S. Washington-st. Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Anderson, E. Franklin-st., were the only attendants. Mr. and Mrs. Stout will reside at 385 E. Franklin-st. Mr. Stout is employed at the Charles Smith Meat market, and Mrs. Stout is a clerk in the government hospital in Chillicothe. Dudley Carpenter, E. Mound-st., left Wednesday evening for a business trip to Roanoke, Va. Mrs. Carpenter and son Jimmy are spending a few days with her sister Mrs. Earl Rader, Jackson-twp.

MRS. JURY ENTERTAINS EBENEZER CIRCLE

Mrs. George Jury of Pickaway-twp entertained twenty members of the Ebenezer social circle at her home Wednesday afternoon when they assembled for their December session. During the business meeting officers were elected for the ensuing year. Mrs. Jury is president; Mrs. Orin Dreisbach, vice president; Mrs. Harvey Dreisbach, secretary; Mrs. Harry Montelius, treasurer, and Mrs. James Pierce, pianist. A social hour followed the election during which gifts were exchanged and refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants Mrs. George Steele and Mrs. James Shaner. The January session will be held at the home of Mrs. Harvey Dreisbach, E. Main-st., with Mrs. Charles Dreisbach and Mrs. John Hoffman as assisting hostesses.

BRIDGE CLUB MEETS WITH MRS. BUTTS

Mrs. Joseph Butts of Kingston entertained the members of her bridge club of Jackson-twp and three guests Wednesday afternoon at her home. Miss Ruth Immel, Mrs. Clarence Myers and Mrs. Wayne Hoover were guests. Three tables of cards were in progress with high score trophies going to Mrs. George Shook, Mrs. Orle Rader and Mrs. Hoover. A delicious lunch was served after the game. Next week Mrs. Frank Reichelderfer, Jackson-twp, will be hostess to the club. MR. AND MRS. HEFFNER ENTERTAIN AT BRIDGE Mr. and Mrs. Harry Heffner, E. Union-st., entertained twenty four of their friends at their home Wednesday evening complimenting Mrs. Foster Weldon of Evans-ton, Ill., a sister of Mrs. Heffner. Bridge was the diversion of the delightful hours and a buffet lunch was served at its close. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brundage of Kingston were the only out-of-town guests.

Marian Martin Patterns

Complete, Diagrammed Marian Martin Sew Chart Included. PATTERN 9214

Lines which run from shoulder to hem are one of the best means for giving the larger figure a grace and fluid suppleness. This frock carries out that idea by means of a long panel back and front. The deep V of the bodice also helps to disguise a look of broadness above the waistline. Inverted pleats, back and front, help to keep the slim line of the skirt which is so fashionable this year and at the same time give it comfortable roominess when walking. Satin-backed crepe would be a charming choice for this smart afternoon dress, with the satin, of course, used for the contrasting revers and the nice detail at the cuffs. Pattern 9214 may be ordered only in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 requires 4 1/2 yards 39 inch fabric and 3/4 yard contrasting. Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for EACH MARIAN MARTIN pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE of each pattern. Do not miss our WINTER PATTERN BOOK of smart, easy-to-make clothes designed by our style authority, MARIAN MARTIN. Styles for every age and all occasions. PRICE OF BOOK FIFTEEN CENTS. WHEN YOU CASH A CHECK

When you cash or deposit a check for $100, drawn on a bank in some other city, you may not realize what it will cost your bank to collect that check.

For you the transaction is complete. It has not occurred to you that your bank has actually advanced you $100 of its own money for several days until it can get the $100 back from the bank in the other city, meanwhile losing the interest on this amount.

Also, during this process of collection your check must be recorded, letters written, verified, mailed and otherwise handled by many people.

This is only one of many valuable and costly services that bank patrons sometimes "take for granted."

BLOSSOMING GENIUS

A GREAT deal of interesting information is coming from New York City about the little fellow of six years who is showing so many signs of being a mental marvel. The youngster knew his own name, his address and the addresses and telephone numbers of a dozen relatives when he was two. Since reaching the age of four he has read an average of a book a day. Now he is rated by authorities at the College of the City of New York as having an intelligence quotient higher than that of Charles Darwin, who expounded the theory of evolution, and almost as high as that of Albert Einstein.

Whether all of this is highly important is a question which only time can answer with complete satisfaction. The history of prodigies has not been one of unflinching achievement of the objectives of life that really matter. For his own good, no doubt, the name of the precocious youngster is being kept secret. Eventually his identity will be revealed to an interested world.

Probably the most vital feature of the child's story, however, is one that may be regarded as rather commonplace. The reports say that the lad has a robust physique and is in excellent health, that he plays with children his own age and enjoys their games. There are definite advantages in being a normal child in addition to being a prodigy.

PERFECT DEVOTION

KIPLING expressed in poetry the conviction that the purchase of a dog is an investment in unflinching love, in perfect passion and in worship. A news story from Rock Island, Ill., gives substance to this belief.

Ten years ago, "Shep," a collie, followed his master, Francis McMahon, into St. Anthony's Hospital and received a pat on the head in farewell as the man ascended to an operating room. A few days later Mr. McMahon died.

Ever since then, "Shep" has kept his vigil, watching the descending car, each time waiting expectantly for a familiar face. At first "Shep" would not eat but after a time physicians and other attendants succeeded in coaxing him away from the spot for his meals. He returns immediately to resume his watch.

To the thousands who have seen him and read of his fidelity, "Shep" must serve as an example of devotion found all too seldom in a rather thoughtless and heedless world of humans.

Snappy days are here again.

"You take out of life no more than you put in." This is especially true of hair.

There is one advantage about the modern kind of poverty. It doesn't include itch.

The theory that sport pages "made" football sounds reasonable until you notice basketball.

It took time to get a Cuban president who would be recognized by all factions and Wall Street.

A doctor says the way we sit causes backache. So that's what's the matter with Junior's neck.

And doubtless the fleas that live on a dog feel abused when his scratching disturbs them.

CAROLINE by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

CHAPTER XXXII

Howard might have gone on and told her that Gwendolyn was interested in affairs of her own, in particular a certain young man whom Howard understood would marry her in a moment if she were free. But he felt that Caroline would say, if she knew this, that he would not be justified in living a lie any longer for his father's sake. Her idea that a man could work and earn his living was a matter he preferred not to discuss with her.

He decided he'd told her enough for the time being. But he did wish she had a little more abandon in her love for him. Better not to mention it to her, though—set her to weighing her feelings. What a fool he was! The least doubt of her and he was frantic. Pity he couldn't have been so madly in love with her in the beginning!

Caroline was quite unconscious of making him feel that her love was cooling. She realized that his ardor was increasing, but she had always thought her love was greater. The lack of a corresponding rise on her own part did not cause her to question her love for him. She was only pleased that even belatedly she was falling equally in love with her. It was flattering, and promised greater happiness for their future. She accepted it complacently.

Howard planned, on the long drive to Fern's home, to stir in her some sympathy for his own viewpoint. But on Friday night Caroline received a message from her mother that caused her to postpone the trip.

The Shorthill twins, Jack and Jill, had come down with the measles. Mrs. Rutledge could not leave. She would let Caroline know, her message said, when to come for her.

Caroline was greatly worried. Fern's only domestic help was a young colored girl who worked for her board and room. Fern was sending her to school and getting little in return for the quantities of food the girl consumed. She would be of no service with sick children, Caroline feared. The burden of caring for them would fall on Alva.

She wrote to her mother, begging her to consider her own health and Alva answered that she was feeling very well. Caroline sent what money she had so that Fern might have a woman come in and relieve her mother but Alva advised Fern to use the money for other purposes. She had learned that Fern's husband had been out of work for several months and that they were living from hand to mouth on the small sums he made at odd jobs. The money Caroline sent bought food and medicine.

Alva found a spiritual reward in serving the sister she had formerly neglected. The very ache of her weariness eased her remorse. How much she'd had!—how blindly selfish had been her life in those easy, fleeting years at Hawthorn House! When she had not even counted the time that passed between their visits. No wonder Fern had been proud—had stayed away. Alva remembered having driven through this drowsy old town years ago and stopping only to leave christening presents for the twins before going on her way to Florida. It was as clear in her mind—that day—as though it had been yesterday. The hurt look in Fern's eyes when she had laughingly refused to stay even for a cup of tea. She was joining friends from New York at Miami when she had been there. Arthur's hand laid comfortingly on Fern's arm. She understood now. Fern's husband had seen through her sister's shallowness, had offered silent sympathy, and she had gone on her way, forgetting them within a mile—thinking of the pleasure of going to sea on a big, luxurious boat, with gay, carefree companions.

The memory of the past drove her to undertake a course far beyond her strength to carry out. She nursed the twins faithfully, night and day, managed the household and looked after Fern when she had one of her frequent illnesses. And then one morning, when she did not appear in the kitchen before breakfast, Fern thought she was over-sleeping and would not have her called. At noon Caroline received word that her mother was dead. Mrs. Rutledge, suffering from nervous shock, was unable to come to the factory for her. It was Malcolm, to whom he telephoned at Purcell's, who brought her the sad news.

When they got home she found her father drinking large glasses of cheap whiskey. For one blinding moment of white hot rage she hated him. Then even that feeling was lost in the terrible numbness that seemed to be turning her to stone.

For hours she lay on her bed with- out uttering a sound, only her fingers moving in clutching grasps at whatever they touched predicted the breaking point. It began with a whimper, rose to a gasping, sobbing cry and then she shrieked: "Mother! Mother! Mother!"

Mrs. Stuart hastily called a doctor. Until he came and administered a sedative Caroline begged frantically to be taken to her mother. The doctor said she was not to be moved that day.

Malcolm spoke to him as he was leaving, about Mr. Rutledge. Alcoholism, the physician said, and prescribed a drastic treatment for him. Malcolm saw that he got it.

Howard came in the evening. He had not heard of Alva's death. Mrs. Stuart admitted him and told him what had happened. She reported to Malcolm later that he took it "cool enough."

Well, they weren't very good friends, I guess, he said, remembering a conversation he had had with Alva about Dunsforth when she had told him she was sorry Caroline was interested in Howard.

"The way he took charge of things!" Mrs. Stuart went on. "Just never have thought that a girl like Caroline Rutledge would fall in love with an upitty no account like him. He had the face to tell me not to disturb her when I was taking in a hot water bottle for her feet. They were as cold as ice. Said he'd telephoned for a nurse to look after her."

Malcolm walked away without further comment. Now! his mother thought, "wasn't I the fool to say anything about her loving that young Dunsforth!"

That next day Howard came in a large car to take Caroline and her father to her mother's old home, where Alva was to be buried. The nurse accompanied them. Mr. Rutledge, a wreck of a man, could not have held a wheel for an hour.

Caroline was too stricken with grief to question anything anyone said. The nurse kept her as quiet as possible. No one consulted her about arrangements.

Howard had reserved rooms for himself and Mr. Rutledge at the Commercial Hotel, the one and only hostelry in the town. There he took Philip after the wedding man had spent an hour in Fern's house, where Alva lay at rest.

The nurse remained with Caroline. The girl would have spent the rest of the night on her knees beside her mother's bed, but the nurse practically carried her away at last. Caroline could never afterward remember clearly the two days that followed. Her brain seemed to have retained only a collection of disjointed impressions, as unreal as a nightmare.

It was late when they arrived at the house in Edge Street and Mrs. Stuart was waiting for them and though Howard greeted her coldly she coolly ignored him. She felt she had her duty to do as a neighbor and she meant to do it if no one but an outsider tried to stop her.

Caroline clung to her pathetically. "You were so good to my mother," the girl sobbed. Mrs. Stuart shot a triumphant glance at Howard who had tried to take Caroline's hands.

"I'll have a housekeeper here for you tomorrow," he said, meaning to let Mrs. Stuart know that they would not require her services. Caroline submitted unresponsively to his parting kiss. She was thinking of how much she had hurt her mother on his account. But by morning she was remorseful. Fern's grateful praise of him, coming back to her with more meaning than it had possessed when uttered, set her to thinking of his generosity. Apparently her mother had not discussed him with Fern. Fern had called her a lucky girl. He had been splendid. It put her under a great obligation to him—but what would they have done without him?

Her mother had died of heart failure, they said. Heart failure! Heartbreak—and hard work! And pride! That would happen to Fern too; she had heard Arthur say so to her father, if he could not make her life easier, Arthur was scared. He had a right to be.

Howard had helped them, he would save Fern's life, perhaps. The nurse had stayed there, and there would be another woman to help her. The children and Fern would be taken care of until they were well and Fern had her baby. Howard had given them money. It seemed to Caroline that even to think of repaying him was unappreciative. All he asked was her love.

She glanced over from her bed at his photograph on her dressing table. "I do love you," she whispered as though he had asked her to say it.

Howard spent the afternoon with her and she was so compliant and receptive he was persuaded to the belief that she would agree with him that it was ridiculous for her to think of going back to her work at the factory. But he did not mention the subject that day.

The following evening he brought it up by suggesting that she and her father should move to a house in the country.

Caroline shook her head. "We couldn't pay rent," she told him. Howard looked hurt. "I had hoped you would realize that it's time for you to let me worry about rent," he remarked.

Caroline put her hands over his, clung to them. "Please don't argue with me," she begged. "I know I can't repay all you've done myself, but I can go on supporting myself. I want to work. If I didn't you would have to be with me every minute. I couldn't endure to be idle."

"Won't you ever think of me?" he reproached her. "There's father," she reminded him. "He wouldn't consent."

Howard shrugged. "Then leave him here. You must get out of it, Caroline. I'm sorry to say it, but your father is . . . well, if he was made to realize what he has done, how he's gone down, and was put absolutely on his own, it might be the best thing that could happen to him."

"I suppose I shouldn't let you say that," Caroline protested, "and you ought to know I won't desert him. This thing has licked him, it's true, but it didn't lick mother . . ."

It killed her," Caroline finished for him, "but first it made her, Howard. There was the most beautiful peace in her face. You know what she would say about my leaving father. 'I'll never let her down.'"

He looked at her strangely and she seemed to read his thoughts, for she asked hastily: "Oh, yes, I know you paid for her funeral—Father's debt—and you gave money to Fern and she took it because she thought I would want her to. Well, I did. I don't want her to die too, as mother did. But don't you see, that makes it all the more my obligation to mother to settle her father tries to repay you. It's all I can do for her now."

Howard smiled, rather pityingly. "Your sentiment is beautiful, Caro, but I'm afraid your material is—er—inadequate. I don't like to be unkind, but think a moment. This house—it's beastly uncomfortable. Right now it's ten degrees too cold at least. Your father doesn't even tend the furnace properly. It must be frightful for you, getting up in the morning in an icy room."

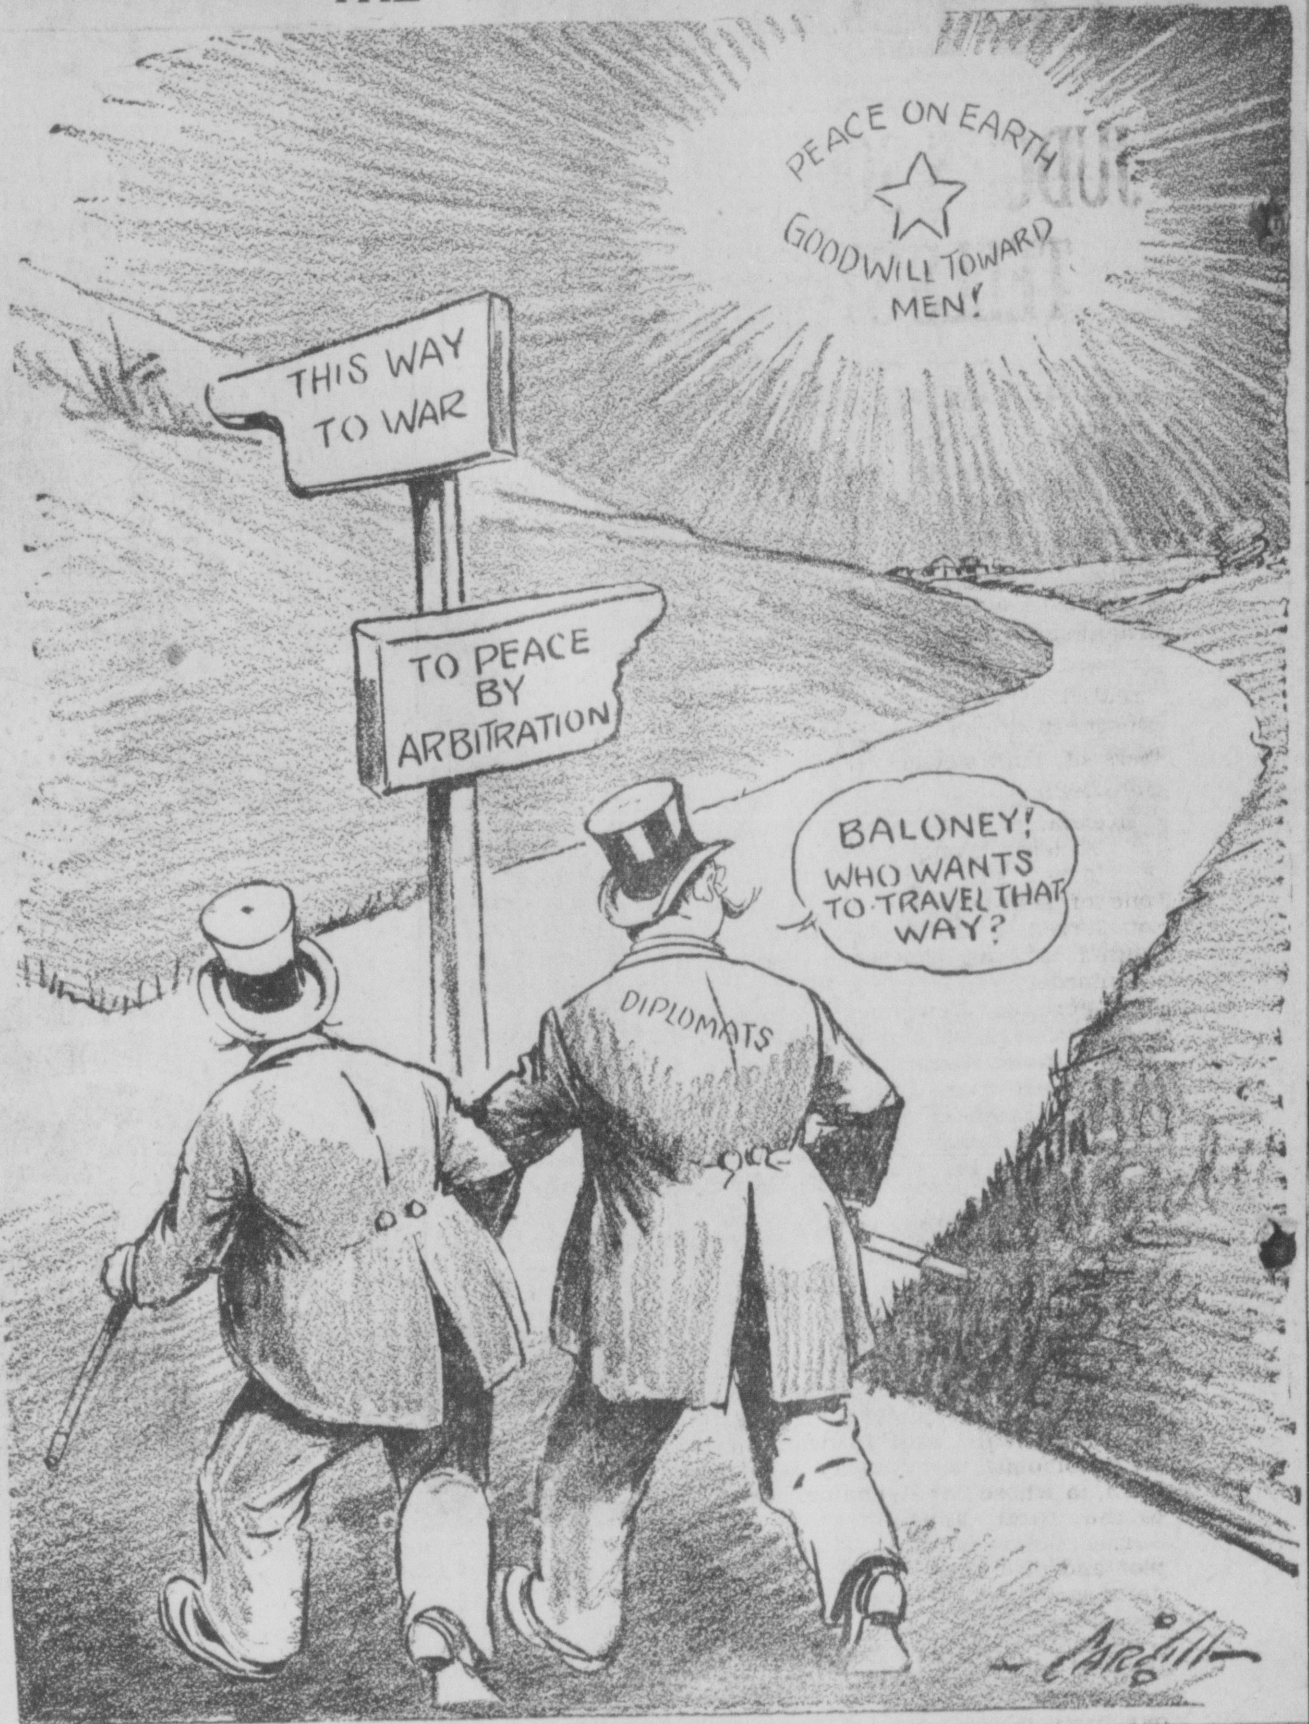

"Millions of people have done it," Caroline answered dully, "and I'm not soft any more."

"Well," Howard gave up, "have it your own way." But in his heart he felt she must soon realize that her father was a broken reed.

THE "WISE GUYS" OF EUROPE

Rhinitis Is Common in Winter

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health,
New York City

THIS IS the time of the year when catarrh and inflammations of the nose and throat are all too common. Some persons seem to have more than their share of these annoying conditions. They are extremely capricious to slight changes in weather and exposure to cold and drafts. This weakness is usually the result of neglected chronic rhinitis.

Dr. Copeland

"Rhinitis," as its name implies, is an irritation, inflammation or infection of the mucous membrane lining the nose and throat. The sufferer from rhinitis usually has a stuffiness in the nose and an irritating dryness of the throat.

As a rule there is difficulty in clearing the throat. The victim has an annoying dry cough. This can be traced to constant dropping of mucus into the throat. The trouble is more marked in the morning and clears up during the day. The cough may be severe and sometimes it indicates complications within the chest.

At some time or other most of us have suffered from a "running nose," with redness, irritation and marked discomfort of the upper air passage. This is the common form of acute rhinitis. It usually lasts for a few hours to a few days and disappears as the nasal discharge clears up.

Chronic rhinitis is a persistent form of the disorder. It requires careful medication and treatment before cure is accomplished. Chronic rhinitis is usually associated with infection of the nasal sinuses or some deformity of the nose.

It is plain to see how neglect of this disorder may lead to serious complications. Such disturbances as rheumatism, heart disease, kidney disease and intestinal disorders are sometimes traced to the neglect of rhinitis.

In many instances the inflammation is not caused by infection, but, as I have said, is the result of some nasal deformity. Thickening of the bony tissue within the nose, a misplaced septum, or other nasal abnormality leads to irritation and congestion of the lining of the nose. This lowers the resistance of this delicate membrane against germs, and increases the liability of colds and infections.

Sufferers from chronic rhinitis should seek medical advice for the correction of all defects of the upper air passages. In addition to the necessary operation or treatment needed, it is important to bear in mind the value of a nourishing and well-balanced diet. There is no doubt that a faulty diet, deficient in certain minerals or vitamins, is a hindrance to good health and increases the susceptibility to nasal infections.

Poems That Live

THE COMMON STREET

The common street climbed against the sky,
Gray meeting gray; and we to and fro,
I saw the patient common people,
Each, with his sordid burden trudging by.
And the rain dropped; there, not any sign
Or stir of a live wind; dull and slow
All motion as a tale told long ago.
The faded world; and a night drew nigh.
Then burst the sunset, flooded and fleet,
Leavening the whole of life with magic leaven.
Suddenly down the long glistening hill
Pure splendor poured—and the common street,
A golden highway into heaven,
With the dark shapes of men ascending still.
—Helen Gray

OUTSTANDING AMONG the construction feats of the nineteenth century was the erection of the Eiffel Tower in the Champ de Mars, at Paris, by Alexandre Gustave Eiffel, noted French engineer. The tower was completed March 31, 1889, in time to serve as one of the features of the Paris exposition of that year. From the top of the tower, which is 984 feet (300 meters) above the ground, the view extends to a distance of about 85 miles. In the construction of the giant structure, more than 7,000 tons of steel were used, and the cost was estimated at $1,600,000. The tower in recent years has been used for scientific purposes. Problems involving wind pressures and currents have been studied from the tower and antennae have been suspended from it for wireless communication.

The use of natural gas in China and Persia is said to date back to a very remote period.

Devil's Island

DEVIL'S ISLAND is a small, barren island off the coast of French Guiana, South America, about 30 miles northwest of Cayenne. It became famous through the confinement there of Captain Alfred Dreyfus.

Dreyfus, a French military officer, was arrested in 1894 charged for the first time with passing secrets to a foreign power. Tried in secret court, he was sentenced to solitary confinement on the island.

Created with great severity, once the prisoner was on the island for two months. He persistently denied his guilt, and one of his prominent defenders was the novelist Emile Zola. The captain finally was exonerated in 1899 following the suicide of an intelligence officer named Colonel Henry, who confessed to forging the name to a document used in evidence.

The outcome of the Dreyfus case was hailed as a triumph over militarism in France.

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

NO DOG RACING

Judge Fuchs of the Boston Braves has abandoned his idea of conducting dog races on Braves field—Philadelphia is the reason. * * * Offensive maras of the 1933 football season were broken by four teams this year with the Chicago Bears, deposed champions, gaining 3,750 yards—Boston, Detroit and Green Bay also passed the mark—Philadelphia was the best team defensively yielding only 1,237 yards—None of the league games resulted in a tie and more than 20 per cent were decided by field goals.

STRONG TO PLAY

Kenny Strong, star of the New York Giant team, is planning to try to assume his baseball career after being out for two years because of a wrist injured while with Toronto—He will go with the Brooklyn Dodgers.

TURNESA-ESPINOSA TIE

Mike Turnesa and Abe Espinosa, a couple of Irish boys, are knotted for the lead in the Miami open country tour with 291 strokes each—Orville White of St. Louis and Olin Dutra of the home club trail in third and fourth places.

TANGLE JAN. 3

Ashville and New Holland meet January 3 on the latter's court and will be the fur fly—Ashville beat both New Holland teams last week and the men and ladies, too, coached by Shadel Saunders will be after revenge.

Seeks Missouri Job

Harold (Red) Grange

Leading candidate for the job of head coach at University of Missouri, succeeding Frank Carideo, resigned, is Harold (Red) Grange, once "galloping ghost" of the University of Illinois, now captain of the Chicago Bears' professional team. Grange has formally applied for the position abandoned by Carideo, under whose coaching the Tigers won only three games in three years.

Bill Hunt Brings Columbus Sharpshooters Here For Game Friday Evening; Herberholz to Stand Pat On Lineup.

Circleville's Tigers, victorious in their initial start of the season against Williamsport last week will take on a real foe Friday evening when Columbus Academy coached by Bill Hunt comes here.

The Academy team defeated Columbus East last week and did a good job of it. The Tigers lost to Academy last year in a good game but the locals are believed much stronger than they were a year ago.

Hunt is recognized as one of the best basketball coaches in central Ohio and with a lot of good material should have a fine squad. The Academy crew plays more a professional type of basketball than most high school teams simply because Hunt teaches them that way.

Johnny Herberholz who did good work a week ago will again handle the whistle. Coach Pete Herberholz is expected to stand pat on the starting lineup used a week ago. He had Kirwin and Henry at forwards, Grant at center and Jenkins and Speakman at guards. This crew handled the ball nicely and showed a real tendency except on a few occasions—to sacrifice to a colleague in better position to take a peg at the bucket.

Tierberholz has several good boys on the sidelines including Chuck Stevens, Normie Coleman, Friley and others.

On Saturday evening the cagers will travel to Groveport to meet the team representing that town. The Tigers defeated this team last year in a surprise.

BUCKS DEFEAT MARIETTA TEAM

MARIETTA, Dec. 13.—Ohio State university's basketball team is as good comparatively speaking as its football team as far as Marietta college is concerned. The Bucks beat the Marietta team 32-21 with Coach Hal Olsen using 15 men and little Tippy Dye who comes from this part of Ohio leading the offense.

Dye was a substitute but he torped the scorers and played a splendid floor game. Defensive work of Captain Betner of Ohio was also outstanding. He held Bowser, sharpshooting Marietta forward, without a point. The failure of Ball, giant center, to crash the scoring column also hurt the local's chances.

Berens and Reeves led the Ohio university cagers in a 52-20 defeat of Wilmington college at Wilmington Wednesday evening.

Coach Grover of Ohio used second stringers the greater part of the game.

N. HOLLAND WINS

New Holland's cage team stopped Muhlenberg 24-15 in an interesting game at New Holland Wednesday evening.

The New Holland girls also won, 18-13.

Records of the Ohio Dairy Herd Improvement Association show that a cow producing 400 pounds of butterfat a year requires little more than half as much feed to make 100 pounds of milk as a cow that makes 200 pounds of butterfat a year.

Sign Tax Measure Today

three millions, and increase in intangibles tax, one and a half millions.

None of the emergency tax measures remains in effect longer than one year, it being understood that the next legislature, convening in January, will enact a new permanent state tax program.

It was Governor White's announced intention to sign the sales tax act today, along with a measure increasing the tax rate on intangibles one per cent and another re-acting the one-cent liquid fuel tax for one year, constituted the emergency tax program which the governor forced through a lame duck session of the legislature.

White achieved his most notable legislative triumph in compelling the assembly to submerge its prejudice against any new tax on incomes, forcing it to return to the capital and enact such measure after it adjourned last week, thinking its work was done.

"I would have much preferred an income tax to an increased intangibles tax," the governor commented. "However, the increase in the intangible tax is approximately equivalent in net results to the net income tax proposed by me, because there are no deductions or exemptions in the intangible tax law.

"I shall now approve the sales tax with the knowledge that by doing so our schools and local governments will be saved from bankruptcy and chaos in 1935.

"I know now that the poor will be fed and clothed and our children given the opportunity of a free education which is the birthright of every American child and that the safety and health of our people will be guaranteed."

UP TO ASSEMBLY

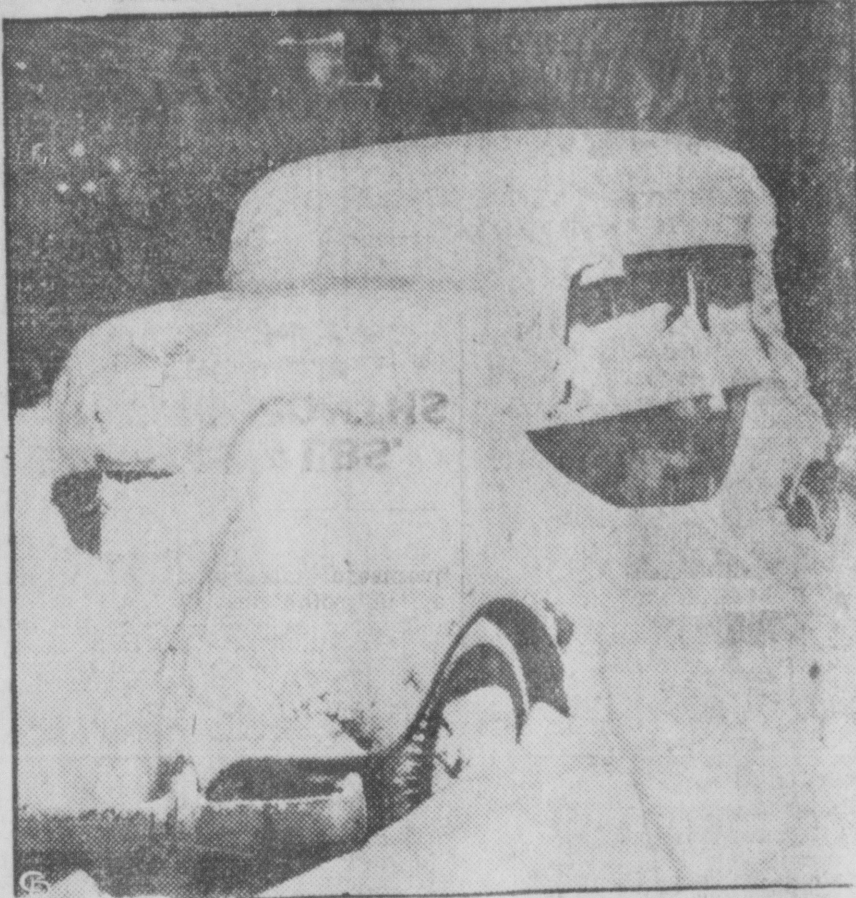

He said he was pleased that the legislature "has agreed to the demand of our people by accepting an increased tax upon the owners of intangible property" and recognized that there are discrepancies in the emergency tax program which the 91st General Assembly must iron out.

Effective date of the sales tax, which Governor White fought for two years to have the legislature enact, is Jan. 1, but that does not allow sufficient time to set up the far-flung machinery for collection of the tax, according to Dargusch, the tax commissioner.

He said contracts for the printing of half a billion (50) sales tax receipts in one-cent and other small denominations, enough to last Ohio merchants approximately 60 days, will be let within the next two or three days.

That many receipts, he explained,

This is just one of hundreds of automobiles stalled in downtown Chicago as the worst blizzard in 30 years swept the Windy City.

ed, will cost the state about $50,000 and will require about 186,000 pounds of paper. The receipts will be purchased in advance by every retail merchant selling articles not exempt under the sales tax. In the presence of the customer, he will tear the receipt in two, giving the buyer half and retaining the other, thus completing payment of the tax.

Articles exempted from the sales levy are milk, bread, newspapers, feeds, seeds and fertilizer. There will be no tax on professional services, such as those of the physician, dentist or lawyer, or on rents.

Sales tax receipts will be purchased by the retailer from his county treasurer exclusively until the tax commission has time to set up additional agents in the more populous counties. Each merchant must carefully estimate the amount of business he expects to do during a certain period and purchase enough tax receipts to cover all purchases. The law forbids him to buy or borrow receipts from other retailers if he unexpectedly exhausts his own supply.

TAKES SHORT TIME

It took the Senate, which previously had defeated an income tax, only a few hours to rush through the one per cent increase on intangibles once it got down to business. The measure was then forced through the lower house in record time.

Since the intangibles tax measure received barely enough Senate votes to insure passage—17—administration leaders in the lower house took no chances of a fatal slip that might have even one amendment, which would have necessitated another Senate vote to concur in the alteration.

Rep. P. E. Ward (R) Chardon, author of the defeated income tax, sought valiantly to write in amendments more clearly limiting the one per cent increase to one year and to exempt the first $500 of income from intangibles from the levy. But Rep. Keith Lawrence, Democratic floor leader, after warning the House of the probable consequences in the Senate, succeeded in defeating the Ward amendments.

Ward's $500 exemption proposal was termed the "widows' amendment." Its purpose was to lift the tax from widows whose only income may be from securities, and who, Ward said, should not be made to pay a tax intended to "soak the rich."

HALF MILLION ILL OF MALARIA FEVER

COLOMBO, Ceylon, Dec. 13.—Half a million Singhalese languished near death today as the worst epidemic of malaria in twenty years ravaged the island.

Tales of misery due to the total lack, in some sections, of food and medicine poured in. In some areas ninety per cent of the population were ill and scores of deaths were reported.

Between 60,000 and 70,000 victims have been treated in hospitals, and the British government is rushing medical supplies from Colombo and major ports in India.

3-ACT SHOW CAN AGAIN BE SEEN TONIGHT

"Crashing Thru" Is Different From Usual Run of Plays; Characters Good.

"Crashing Thru", witnessed by a small crowd, will be presented again this evening at the Grand theatre under the auspices of the Royal Neighbors of America.

The three-act musical comedy was well presented by the cast selected. Miss Ann Wilson is the director.

The production was different from the usual run of plays. Each act was preceded by a prologue in which Stanley Peters, Mrs. Adolphus Pearce and Glen Pearce were grandpa, grandma and grandson respectively.

The scenes which followed the prologues portrayed the story one of the above characters was telling.

The first act showed the time of grandpa's and grandma's marriage in 1898 and included songs and dances of that period by choruses. Howard Greeno, Marjorie Brown, Betty Brown and John Hegele were the characters in this scene.

The second act was set in a radio station and told how grandpa's and grandma's son Tom Jackson, Jr., portrayed by Proctor Baughman, tried to get a good program for the Collapsible Bathing hour by H. C. Mooney, was interested. If Tom made a success of this program he would be financially able to marry his sweetheart Betty, enacted by Dorothy Green.

Characters appearing for auditions included Roy Atwell in the person of Edward Ashworth; Mae West, Blanche Motesman; Grace Allen, Grace Young; Baron Munchausen, Harold Dowler; Jimmy Durante, Berlin Noble. All were well chosen for their parts. Mary Bell the office girl was ably portrayed by Miss Wilson.

The last act showed how the marriage of the grandson would take place in 1958.

Tom in this scene is enacted by Bill Hegele and Bernice Shasteen was Nancy his sweetheart. Edgar, Bob Carter was the bridegroom-to-be. Several inspectors added to the fun in this act including Harry Steinhauer, Ernest Weller, Harold Dowler, Charles Kirkpatrick, Malcolm Russell, Gordon Dunkle and John Neuding.

Appearing in the choruses throughout the play were Theda Anderson, Leona Pierce, Eleanor Pierce, Mildred Rowland, Katherine Green, Bernice Grooms, Mary Hall, Margaret Butler, Maxine Niles, Rosemary Neuding, Maxine Betts, Margaret Riegel, Mary Burchwell, Virginia Brown, Eileen Brown, Betty Conrad, Marjorie Westchaver, Harriet Beery, Arrabelle Thorn, Marcelette Kerr, Cecil Andrews, Loren Carothers, Gaylord, Greenlee, Kenneth Davis, and Frank Wilkerson.

WILEY POST FAILS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—Wiley Post, of "round-the-world" flight fame, failed in his attempt of Dec. 7 to break the world's altitude record for airplanes, the National Aeronautic association announced.

Post, at Oklahoma City, when informed he had failed, said: "I'll try it again."

The altitude reached was not disclosed by the N. A. A., but the federation aeronautic internationale stated that Post, in order to officially return the record, now held by Commander Donati of Italy at 47,352, to this country, must climb 656 feet higher into the stratosphere, or to a height of 48,008.

Cordell Hull Seems Loser In Feud With Peek Over Boosting Trade By Barter

WASHINGTON—For one year a feud has been raging between Cordell Hull of Tennessee and George Peek, veteran of a score of battles with the Brain Trust and Henry Wallace.

Now, for the first time it looks as if mountaineer Secretary of State was losing out.

Peek has now won the first round in the battle of extending credits to Germany. He has also won on the more important principle of barter and quotas versus unrestricted trade.

Unrestricted trade has been Hull's passion, and he has stood out for it valiantly. He contends that exchange restrictions, quotas, other trade barriers merely force commerce out of normal channels, tend to throttle it in the long run.

Peek, on the other hand, contends we should do business with those who do business with us.

He put this to a test recently through sales of cotton to Germany. A deal is now arranged whereby Germany buys 500,000 bales, paying 25 per cent in cash and 75 per cent in frozen German marks which cannot be shipped to the United States.

This latter is most important. Since the marks cannot be shipped here, American business men must buy German goods in order to secure the use of the marks.

Thus the plan boils down to plain, unadorned barter. Either the United States buys German goods or else it doesn't get the remainder of the money for the 500,000 bales of cotton.

Realizing what a bargain that is, the Germans are willing to pay three cents more than the world price.

Imagine Mr. Hull's mortification! Imagine also his mortification at the fact that Brazil, just a few weeks ago, turned the Germans down on this same proposition. They gave their veto out of deference to Mr. Hull whose views they knew, and because they were negotiating a commercial treaty with the United States.

And having deferred to Mr. Hull, they turn round and find the United States doing exactly the same sort of thing which Brazil refused to do.

No Change

One of the women reporters put Mrs. Roosevelt on the spot at her weekly press conference. But the First Lady met the challenge with her usual aplomb.

"Mrs. Roosevelt," inquired the correspondent, "what will be the policy toward Mrs. Mitchell?"

"There will be no change," was the prompt and quiet answer.

Note: Mrs. Arthur H. Mitchell is the wife of the recently elected Negro Democratic Representative from Chicago. Her husband defeated the Republican incumbent, Oscar De Priest, also a Negro. Mrs. De Priest was invited to White House socials by Mrs. Roosevelt for the wives of members of the House.

TAX MEASURE SIGNED TODAY BY GOV. WHITE

Sales Tax and Other Bills to Raise Finances for State

PERSONAL VICTORY

Intangible Rate Boosted By Solons

COLUMBUS, Dec. 13.—Governor George White today affixed his signature to the sales tax bill, adopted by the state legislature as the keystone of a gigantic tax-raising program to provide funds for the relief of the schools and local subdivisions.

The measure, which is expected to raise $56,000,000 in new revenue, was signed at 11:15 a. m. Signing of the bill took place in the presence of State Representatives Tom Jones (R) of Pomeroy, Joseph Cassidy (R) of Cleveland, and State Tax Commissioner Carlton Dargusch.

SIGNS OTHERS

The governor also signed the Mosier bill, providing for a three per cent tax on gross receipts from theatre and amusement admissions, which were exempt from the sales tax measure, and the McCluskey bill increasing the excise tax on utilities one per cent.

COLUMBUS, Dec. 13.—Ohio's new 3 per cent bracket retail sales tax will go into effect about the middle of January, perhaps on Jan. 14, the day Martin L. Davey is inaugurated as governor. Gov. George White's taxation experts stated today.

It will remain in effect only during 1935, unless re-enacted by the General Assembly. Latest estimate by Carlton S. Dargusch, state tax commissioner, of the sales tax' anticipated productivity in revenue was $56,000,000.

Dargusch took issue with other tax experts, including George Sheridan of the Ohio Council of Retail Merchants, who envisioned proceeds of near $80,000,000. The tax commissioner said they failed to take into account exemptions. Twenty-five per cent of all retail sales are exempted, he said.

WIFE OF FORMER OFFICIAL CALLED

Funeral arrangements for Mrs. Zeina Brundige Lewis, 28, the wife of Charles H. Lewis, of Harpster, former Ohio lieutenant governor, will be held at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Brundige near Kingston tomorrow afternoon, it was announced today.

Mrs. Lewis, who was married to the former lieutenant-governor on Aug. 22 at Harpster, died in Grant hospital during the night while undergoing an abdominal operation. She had been in the hospital about four weeks.

A graduate of the University Hospital school of nurses, Columbus, Mrs. Lewis is survived by her parents, two brothers, Thomas of Columbus and Floyd, of near Kingston, and two sisters, Gertrude, a student at Ohio Wesleyan University and Frances, a teacher in the Ashland schools.

COUNTY ASSESSED $712.70 FOR CONSERVANCY EXPENSE

Auditors of 17 Counties To Receive Certification; Franklin Leads With $7,036.55; Needed For Expenses:

Certification of $712.70, the amount due as Pickaway-co's share for the financing of preliminary surveys of the Scioto-Sandusky conservancy district, was in the mail today to Clifford M. White, county auditor.

Similar certifications were sent to auditors of the other 16 counties.

Conservancy district officials, who estimated that $25,000 would be necessary before a decision on the $36,000,000 water conservation plan could be obtained from PWA officials in Washington, planned to collect $15,000 as soon as possible, with the remaining $10,000 to be collected early next year.

PAY EXPENSES

The initial expenditures, authorized by the conservancy court of common pleas judges from the various counties to be affected by the chain of lakes which would be created along the Scioto and Sandusky rivers under the plan, will pay expenses of district officials and engineers preparing the project for presentation in Washington.

A force of 25 engineers has been at work for nearly two weeks surveying possible sites for the 10 dams which will form the basis of the flood, drought, and soil erosion control program. A survey is also to be made of the diversion cut which will connect the Scioto and Sandusky rivers near their sources.

Amounts levied from the various counties were based on the tax valuation of the counties or sections of counties to be directly benefited by the project.

TO BE RETURNED

If PWA officials ultimately approve the plan, the $25,000 to be collected from the counties for initial expenses will be returned in the federal grants financing the project. Under the present plans, Franklin-co will pay $7,036.55 of the $15,000, the largest single county share. Vinton-co, where only three townships will be benefited, will pay $20.35.

The amounts levied on the 15 other counties in the district were: Crawford, $818.10; Delaware, $161.04; Fayette, $451.10; Highland, $216.50; Madison, $386.56; Marion, $943.25; Pike, $185.92; Ross, $765.25; Sandusky, $370.82; Morrow, $209.07; Scioto, $941.14; Seneca, $678.48; Union, $342.91; Wyandot, $460.23.

REICHE ESTATE

Her surviving husband, M. F. Reiche, Jr., and Allen Thornton have been appointed administrators with the will annexed of the estate of the late Margaret D. Reiche according to the papers filed in probate court.

The entire estate is left to the husband. It is valued at $13,500, $10,500 of which is real estate. The will was written Nov. 28, 1932 and was witnessed by Mrs. Amos Wilson and E. A. Brown. Appraisers are O. S. Howard, E. S. Neuding and F. R. Nicholas.

The fate of their infant daughter, Helen, seized with them at China Inland mission headquarters at Ssingteh, southern Anhwei province, was not known.

FOUND BY SEARCHERS

The bodies, apparently flung into a ditch alongside the highway leading out of Ssingteh, were found by members of a searching party who had scoured the region since the missionary family was seized early this week.

Ssingteh has long been one of the strongholds of the Communist rebel hordes which the Nanking government for years has been attempting to obliterate.

The United States legation here, informed of the outrage, immediately protested to the Nanking government.

Grave fears were felt over the safety of the infant, as it appeared incredible the bandits would slay her parents and spirit the baby away unharmed.

NO RANSOM ASKED

So far as could be learned, no demand for ransom had been received by associates of the slain couple, although this was the procedure usually followed in kidnappings of this sort.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—The United States expects the Chinese government to take immediate steps to apprehend and execute the Chinese bandits responsible for the brutal murder of the American missionary couple, Mr. (Continued On Page Eight)

SENATOR M'ADOO STRICKEN ON TOUR

MANILA, P. I., Dec. 13.—U. S. Senator William Gibbs McAdoo of California today was stricken ill while touring the Philippine islands in company with Senators Tydings of Maryland and McKellar of Tennessee.

Word of Senator McAdoo's illness was contained in a brief dispatch from Col. L. F. Manley, U. S. A., who accompanied the Senators to Hilo, on their tour of the southern provinces of the islands.

Col. Manley's dispatch, addressed to Governor General Frank Murphy, did not describe the nature of the Senator's illness but said he was being rushed to Manila tomorrow morning by airplane, at the order of his physician.

Senator McAdoo left here early today, flying in an army airplane. The Senator, when he left here, apparently was in the best of health having attended parties on Sunday and Monday nights, where it was reported he danced every dance.

WIRES CUT, BULLETS TERRORIZE RESIDENTS

Small Safe Looted of $500 As Main Vault Is Undamaged; Sheriff Believes Shortage of Nitro-Glycerine Saved Bulk of Money

A band of daring bandits believed to number between five and eight and with their plans well organized terrorized Adelphi, Rosco village of some 400 inhabitants, early today and completely wrecked the brick building of the Adelphi Banking Co.

The robbers escaped with loot estimated at $500 after they had blasted a small safe. O. B. Armstrong, the bank cashier, estimated the loot. The outlaws were frustrated in their efforts to enter the big vault which contained a large sum of money when their "soup," a combination containing nitro-glycerine, was believed to have given out after they blasted through several doors leading into the main vault.

FUSE CAPS FOUND

Sheriff Charles Radcliff, who with Deputy Bob Armstrong answered a rush call to the town said the outlaws left a pan in which they had mixed their blasting solution and that a fuse and caps were found on the floor of the badly demolished bank building. A pick left by the bandits was also found in the building. Soap with which the blasting solution was packed against the safe was thrown all over the walls, apparently by the blast.

Pieces of the safe from which the loot was obtained were thrown across the street by the blast. An adding machine and other equipment used in the bank were ruined. While the loot amounted to $500 damage to the bank and its interior will reach several times that amount. No repairs were being made today until an insurance adjuster had made his inspection.

BANK GUARDED

Guards from the office of Sheriff Joe Vincent of Rosco, Deputy Armstrong and deputies from the office of Sheriff Bowtell of Hocking-co remained in the village today to guard the bank against any foray the outlaws might attempt.

It is believed the robbers took possession of the town about 1 a. m. They were first detected about that time after they had blown and the electric light which burned all night in the center of the town was shattered. Attempts of residents of the town to use telephones calling for help disclosed that all methods of communication were cut down. Telephone lines into Laurelville, Logan, Chillicothe, Circleville, and even south of Laurelville on the road to Athens were slashed by the robbers.

Communication was restored into the village early this morning.

The bandits drove into town in a passenger car and a trucklike conveyance, villagers said.

FIRE DEATH TOLL SET AT 59

RUINS YIELD 20 VICTIMS

18 Others Known To Be Missing; Ill-fated Building Known Fire Trap.

LANSING, Mich., Dec. 13.—With 20 bodies recovered, and 18 other persons known to be missing, the death toll of the Kerns hotel fire was officially estimated today at 59.

The estimate was made by Coroner Ray Gorsline, while crews of firemen and PWA workmen continued their gruesome search of the ruins, and a deep sea diver sought the bodies of additional victims who jumped from rear windows of the hotel, a certain but easier death in the Grand river.

Five of the charred bodies taken from ruins of the four-story, 256-room hotel, cannot be identified.

The identified dead include a clergyman from Iowa, and his wife; the manager of the hotel; and six members of the Michigan state legislature which was called to the capital for a special session Monday.

Meanwhile investigation of the tragic blaze which swept through the old wood and brick building Tuesday morning, revealed that fire and police authorities had long considered the hotel a fire trap; that 15 minutes passed between discovery of the blaze and the fire department's first alarm; and that the hotel switchboard may have been out of order when the fire broke out.

"We knew of the danger at the Kerns," said Fire Chief Hugo Defts, "it was the same danger that always exists in buildings with walls and floors of wood. We inspected it regularly, and found it in compliance with the statutes and ordinances governing fire escapes and fire-fighting equipment. That is all we could do."

"I don't suppose it would be feasible to tear down every old wooden hotel in the country, but legislators might make sprinkler systems mandatory and compel installation of some kind of escape device in every room."

Lansing has an ordinance which makes fireproof construction mandatory in all buildings erected since 1927. But the ordinance did not apply to old structures such as the Kerns which was built in 1899.

ASHVILLE SCHOOL NOTES

For the past two weeks the third grade has had 100 per cent attendance.

Last week grade four had a perfect attendance report.

The fourth grade children are keeping a record of the weights and heights of members of the group. They are noting those people who are underweight.

In reading class we are reading and dramatizing "The Christmas Fairy and Scrooge" adapted from Dickens' "A Christmas Carol".

The sixth grade was pleased to have 12 of the mothers attend their Thanksgiving program last week.

The pupils of grade six have completed their plaster paris map of North America. They have placed small boats on the waters to show the various products transported to and from our continent.

When the automobile race which has been conducted in the sixth grade spelling class, ended last week Billy Cloud's blue auto came in first. Other students in his row were Mary McNeal, Billy Scoles, Betty Harris, June Snyder and Ralph Miller. Each pupil was awarded for his merit.

The grade teachers are beginning a study of orthography under the direction of Supt. Higley. The teachers meet once every two weeks. At the last meeting Miss Southorn gave a report on "History," and Miss Ferguson on "Reading."

The seventh and eighth grade boys have been practicing basketball the last two weeks. They would like to schedule some games with other county seventh and eighth grade teams. Any team wishing to play, should call or write Edwin Irwin.

The Ashville high school boys' and girls' basketball teams played hosts to the New Holland boys' and girls' teams on Friday, Dec. 12. The boys' game started out slow with both teams putting up a tight defense. New Holland took the lead with a free throw, but Ashville came back with a field goal after which New Holland also scored from the field leading Ashville 4-3. Ashville then took the lead and kept it for the remainder of the game. Ashville led 11-4 at the first quarter, 12 to 9 at the half, 18 to 14 at the end of the third quarter and 29 to 16 at the end of the game.

The girls' game furnished plenty of excitement, too, although the final score was 21 to 14 in favor of Ashville. The New Holland girls had a big advantage in size but Ashville girls more than made up for this in speed and team work.

Griffith was the official and as usual called them close which is as it should be.

This week Ashville entertains Salt Creek.

The Ashville school music department furnished orchestra, chorus and solo numbers for the county teachers' meeting held in Ashville last Saturday. The soloists were Roberta Cromley, instrumental, and Maxene Canter, vocal.

The P. T. A. furnished a luncheon for which they were highly complimented.

DARBY-TWP SCHOOL NEWS

The girls' basketball team was defeated last Friday evening by the Pickaway girls, the score being 17-12. The boys won by a 11-22 count. The New Holland game will be Wednesday, December 12. On Wednesday, December 19, we will meet Pickaway on our own floor.

The games will be called at 7:30 and price of admission will be 10¢ for all school children and 20¢ for adults.

A game with the Alumni of the school will be played on Jan. 4. Do not forget the Christmas program on Friday, December 21 at 7:30. Rooms one and two will present the Christmas Cantata, "The Christmas Spirit" and Rooms three and four will present the Christmas Pageant "The Shepherd's Trail."

A Christmas program is being arranged for December 21 by the committee in charge of the high school chapel program. Rev. Shepherd of Harrisburg will give the address. Miss DeMuth is the faculty adviser.

ROBTOWN

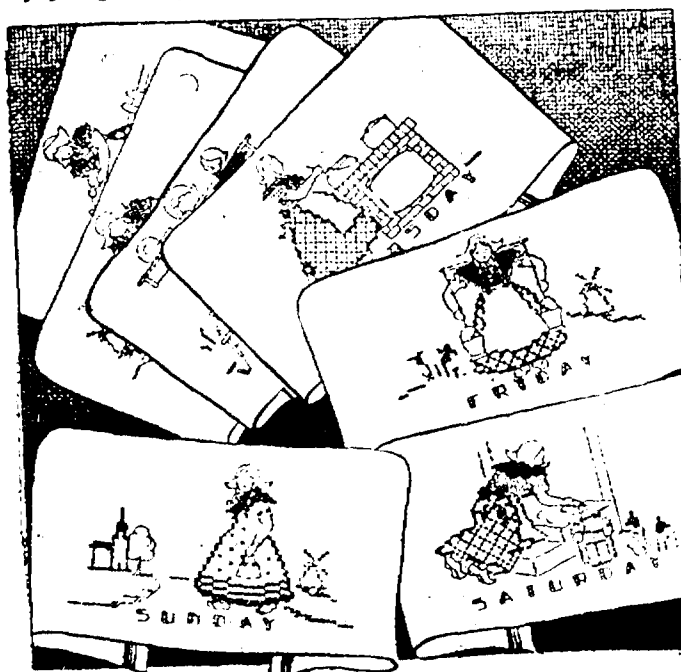

Rev. Smith and wife of Ashville were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Rob Hott and family.

Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Wigginton of Washington C. H. were Sunday guests of their relatives Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Rowe and family.

Mrs. Otis Peters of Columbus spent Wednesday of last week with her sister, Mrs. J. R. Hott.

There will be Christmas exercises at our church Sunday morning, Dec. 23, and the same evening a pageant will be given by some of our Sunday school members, title, O Worship the King.

Gay, Covels Are Always a Welcome Gift

PATTERN 5268

Since the kitchen today is such a gay, delightful room, every housewife takes special pride in having it look its best. A set of these lovely towels will meet with her immediate approval, especially since the Dutch girl is always associated with cleanliness and thrift. These figures there is an appropriate one for each day of the week will be lovely used in various shades of blue, a real Delft effect, in shades of any color, in a color with black, or in a variety of colors. They are done to the greatest part in cross-stitch—the popular eight to the inch cross that gets done quickly and is so effective when embroidered. Press it them to someone at Christmas, and you will be giving a gift that is as practical as it is decorative.

In pattern 5268 you will find a transfer pattern of seven motifs averaging about 5 1/2 x 8 1/2 inches; illustrations of the stitches needed; color suggestions; and material requirements.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to The Herald Household Arts Dept., 124 W. Main-st., Circleville, O.

WATCH KIDNEYS SAME AS BOWELS

Wash Out Your 79,200 Feet of Kidney Tubes

Your bowels contain only 27 feet of intestine, yet the kidneys contain nearly 80 million tiny tubes or filters which would measure 79,200 feet if laid end to end. Therefore, it is just as important to watch the kidneys as the bowels. Kidneys are working all the time and are Nature's chief way of taking the acids and poisons waste out of the blood.

Healthy persons pass 3 pints a day thru the bladder which contains nearly 4 pounds of waste matter. If you pass less than this amount, your 79,200 feet of kidney tubes may be clogged with poisonous waste. This is the danger signal and may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and vitality, getting up at night, limbo, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness.

Kidneys should be watched closely and need cleaning out the same as bowels. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS, an old prescription, which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. They give quick relief and will help to wash out your 79,200 feet of kidney tubes.

But don't take chances with strong drugs that so-called "kidney cures" which claim to fix you up in 15 minutes. Your common sense will tell you that this is impossible. Treatment of this nature may seriously injure and irritate delicate tissues. Insist on DOAN'S PILLS, the old reliable relief that contains no "drugs" or habit-forming drugs. Be sure you get DOAN'S PILLS at your druggist.

PATTERN 9214

Lines which run from shoulder to hem are one of the best means for giving the larger figure a grace and fluid suppleness. This frock carries out that idea by means of a long panel back and front. The deep V of the bodice also helps to disguise a look of broadness above the waistline. Inverted pleats, back and front, help to keep the slim line of the skirt which is so fashionable this year and at the same time give it comfortable roominess when walking. Satin-backed crepe would be a charming choice for this smart afternoon dress, with the satin, of course, used for the contrasting revers and the nice detail at the cuffs.

Pattern 9214 may be ordered only in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 requires 4 1/2 yards 39 inch fabric and 2 yards contrasting.

WHEN YOU CASH A CHECK

When you cash or deposit a check for $100, drawn on a bank in some other city, you may not realize what it will cost your bank to collect that check.

For you the transaction is complete. It has not occurred to you that your bank has actually advanced you $100 of its own money for several days until it can get the $100 back from the bank in the other city, meanwhile losing the interest on this amount.

Also, during this process of collection your check must be recorded, letters written, verified, mailed and otherwise handled by many people.

This is only one of many valuable and costly services that bank patrons sometimes "take for granted."

BLOSSOMING GENIUS

A GREAT deal of interesting information is coming from New York City about the little fellow of six years who is showing so many signs of being a mental marvel. The youngster knew his own name, his address and the addresses and telephone numbers of a dozen relatives when he was two. Since reaching the age of four he has read an average of a book a day. Now he is rated by authorities at the College of the City of New York as having an intelligence quotient higher than that of Charles Darwin, who expounded the theory of evolution, and almost as high as that of Albert Einstein.

Whether all of this is highly important is a question which only time can answer with complete satisfaction. The history of prodigies has not been one of unflinching achievement of the objectives of life that really matter. For his own good, no doubt, the name of the precocious youngster is being kept secret. Eventually his identity will be revealed to an interested world.

Probably the most vital feature of the child's story, however, is one that may be regarded as rather commonplace. The reports say that the lad has a robust physique and is in excellent health, that he plays with children his own age and enjoys their games. There are definite advantages in being a normal child in addition to being a prodigy.

PERFECT DEVOTION

KIPLING once wrote that the true devotion is not the passion of a dog is an investment in unflinching love, in perfect passion and in worship. A news story from Rock Island, Ill., gives substance to this belief.

Ten years ago, "Shep," a collie, followed his master, Francis McMahon, into St. Anthony's Hospital and received a pat on the head in farewell as the man ascended to an operating room. A few days later Mr. McMahon died.

Ever since then, "Shep" has kept his vigil, watching the descending car, each time waiting expectantly for a familiar face. At first "Shep" would not eat but after a time physicians and other attendants succeeded in coaxing him away from the spot for his meals. He returns immediately to resume his watch.

To the thousands who have seen him and read of his fidelity, "Shep" must serve as an example of devotion found all too seldom in a rather thoughtless and heedless world of humans.

Shappy days are here again.

CAROLINE by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

CHAPTER XXXII

Howard might have gone on and told her that Gwendolyn was interested in affairs of her own, in particular a certain young man whom Howard understood would marry her in a moment if she were free. But he felt that Caroline would say, if she knew this, that he would not be justified in living a lie any longer for his father's sake. Her idea that a man could work and earn his living was a matter he preferred not to discuss with her.

He decided he'd told her enough for the time being. But he did wish she had a little more abandon in her love for him. Better not to mention it to her, though—set her to weighing her feelings. What a fool he was! The least doubt of her and he was frantic. Pity he couldn't have been so madly in love with her in the beginning!

Caroline was quite unconscious of making him feel that his love was cooling. She realized that his ardor was increasing, but she had always thought her love was greater. The lack of a corresponding rise on her own part did not cause her to question her love for him. She was only pleased that even belatedly he was falling equally in love with her. It was flattering and promised greater happiness for their future. She accepted it complacently.

Howard planned, on the long drive to Fern's home, to stir in her some sympathy for his own viewpoint. But on Friday night Caroline received a message from her mother that caused her to postpone the trip.

The Shorthill twins, Jack and Jill, had come down with the measles. Mrs. Rutledge could not leave. She would let Caroline know, her message said, when to come for her.

Caroline was greatly worried. Fern's only domestic help was a young colored girl who worked for her. Howard and Caroline were sending her to school and getting a little in return for the quantities of food the girl consumed. She would be of no service with sick children, Caroline feared. The burden of caring for them would fall on Alva.

She wrote to her mother, begging her to consider her own health and Alva answered that she was feeling very well. Caroline sent what money she had so that Fern might have a woman come in and relieve her mother but Alva advised Fern to use the money for other purposes. She had learned that Fern's husband had been out of work for several months and they were living from hand to mouth on the small sums he made at odd jobs. The money Caroline sent bought food and medicine.

Alva found a spiritual reward in serving the sister she had formerly neglected. The very ache of her weariness had been removed. How much she'd had—how blindly selfish had been her life in those easy, fleeting years at Hawthorn House!—when she had not even counted the time that passed between their visits. No wonder Fern had been proud—hadn't she?—Alva remembered having driven through this drowsy old town years ago and stopping only to leave christening presents for the twins before going on her way to Florida. It was as clear in her mind—she day—as though it had been yesterday. The hurt look in Fern's eyes when she had laughingly refused to stay even for a cup of tea. She was joining friends from New York at Miami for a yachting cruise. Arthur's hand laid comfortingly on Fern's arm. She understood now. Fern's husband had even through her sister's sympathy, and she had gone on her way, forgetting them within a mile—thinking of the pleasure of going to sea on a big, luxurious boat, with gay, carefree companions.

The memory of the past drove her to undertake a course far beyond her strength to carry out. She nursed the twins faithfully, night and day, managed the household and looked after Fern when she had one of her frequent illnesses. And then one morning, when the twins were convalescing, and she did not appear in the kitchen before breakfast Fern thought she was over-sleeping and would not have her called.

At noon Caroline received word that her mother was dead. Mr. Rutledge, suffering from nervous shock, was unable to come to the funeral for her. It was Malcolm, to whom he telephoned at Pauline's, who brought her the sad news.

When they got home she found her father drinking large glasses of cheap whiskey. For one blinding moment of white-hot rage she saved him. Then even that feeling was lost in the terrible numbness that seemed to be turning her to stone.

For hours she lay on her back, without uttering a sound, only her fingers moving in clutching grips at whatever they touched pressed on the breaking point. It began with a whimper, rose to a groan, then a cry and then she shrieked, "Mother! Mother! Mother!"

Mrs. Stuart hastily called a doctor. Until he came and administered a sedative Caroline lay rigid, frantically to be taken to her mother. The doctor said she was not to be moved that day.

Malcolm spoke to him as he was leaving, about Mr. Rutledge. Alcoholism, the physician said, and prescribed a drastic treatment for him. Malcolm saw that he got it.

Howard came in the evening. He had heard of Alva's death. Mrs. Stuart admitted him and told him what had happened. She reported to Malcolm later that he took it "cool enough."

"Well, they weren't very good friends, I guess," he said, remembering a conversation he had had with Alva about Dunsforth when she had told him she was sorry Caroline was interested in Howard.

"The way he took charge of things!" Mrs. Stuart went on. "Just as though he owned the place. I'd never have thought that girl like Caroline Rutledge would fall in love with an upitty no account like him. He had the face to tell me not to disturb her when I was taking in a hot water bottle for her feet. They were as cold as ice. Said he'd telephoned for a nurse to look after her."

Malcolm walked away without further comment. Now! his mother thought, "wasn't I the fool to say anything about her loving that young Dunsforth!"

The next day Howard came in. He had heard of Alva's death and he had come to her mother's old home, where Alva was to be buried. The nurse accompanied them. Mr. Rutledge, a wreck of a man, could not have held a wheel for an hour.

Caroline was too stricken with grief to question anything. The nurse kept her as quiet as possible. No one consulted her about arrangements.

Howard had reserved rooms for himself and Mr. Rutledge at the Commercial Hotel, the one and only hotel in the town. The girl like Philip after the death of his father had spent an hour in Fern's house, where Alva lay at rest.

The nurse remained with Caroline. The girl would have spent the rest of the night on her knees beside her mother's body, but the nurse practically carried her away at last.

Caroline could never afterward remember clearly the two days that followed. Her brain seemed to have retained only a collection of disjointed impressions, as unreal as a nightmare.

It was late when they arrived at the house in Edge Street. Mrs. Stuart was waiting for them and though Howard greeted her coldly she coolly ignored him. She felt she had her duty to do as a neighbor and she meant to do it if no one but an outsider tried to stop her.

Caroline clung to her pathetically. "You were so good to my mother," the girl sobbed. Mrs. Stuart shot a triumphant glance at Howard who had tried to take Caroline's hands.

"I'll have housekeeper here for you tomorrow," he said, meaning to let Mrs. Stuart know that they would not require her services.

Caroline submitted unresponsively to his parting kiss. She was thinking of how much she had hurt her mother on his last morning. Fern's grateful praise of him, coming back to her with more meaning than it had possessed when uttered, set her to thinking of his generosity.

Apparently her mother had not discussed him with Fern. Fern had called her a lucky girl. He had been splendid. It put her under a great obligation to him—but what would they have done without him?

Her mother had died of heart failure, they said. Heart failure! Heartbreak—and hard work! And too, she had heard Arthur say so to her father, if he could not make her life easier. Arthur was scared. He had a right to be.

Howard had helped them, he would save Fern's life, perhaps. The nurse had stayed there, and there would be another woman to help her. The children and Fern would be taken care of until they were well and Fern had her baby. Howard had given them money. It seemed to Caroline that even to think of repaying him was unappreciative. All he asked was her love.

She glanced over from her bed at his photograph on her dressing table. "I do love you," she whispered as though he had asked her to say it.

Howard spent the afternoon with her and she was so compliant and receptive he was persuaded to the belief that she would agree with him that it was ridiculous for her to think of going back to her work at the factory. But he did not mention the subject that day.

The following evening he brought it up by suggesting that she and her father should move to a house in the country.

Caroline shook her head. "We couldn't pay rent," she told him.

Howard looked hurt. "I had hoped you would realize that it's time for you to let me worry about rent," he remarked.

Caroline put her hands over his, clung to them. "Please don't argue with me," she begged. "I know I can't repay all you've done for me, but I can go on supporting myself. I want to work. If I didn't you would have to be with me every minute. I couldn't endure to be idle."

"Won't you ever think of me?" he reproached her.

"There's father," she reminded him. "He wouldn't consent."

Howard shrugged. "Then leave him here. You must get out of it. Caroline, I'm sorry to say it, but your father is... well, if he was made to realize what he has done, how he's gone down, and was put absolutely on his own, it might be the best thing that could happen to him."

"I suppose I shouldn't let you say that," Caroline protested, "and you ought to know I won't desert him. This thing has licked him, it's true, but it didn't lick mother..."

"It ki..." Howard broke in, paused.

"It killed her," Caroline finished for him, "but first it made her. Howard, there was the most beautiful peace in her face. You know what she would say about my leaving father. I'll never let her down."

He looked at her strangely and she seemed to read his thoughts, for she added hastily, "Oh, yes, I know you paid for her funeral—Father's debt—and you gave money to Fern and she took it because she thought I would want her to. Well, I did. I don't want her to die too, as mother did. But don't you see, that makes it all the more my obligation to mother to see that father tries to repay you. It's all I can do for her now."

Howard smiled, rather pityingly. "Your sentiment is beautiful, Caro, but I'm afraid your material is—er—inadequate. I don't like to be unkind, but think a moment. This house—it's beastly uncomfortable. Right now it's ten degrees too cold at least. Your father doesn't even tend the furnace properly. It must be frightful for you, getting up in the morning in an icy room."

"Millions of people have done it," Caroline answered dully, "and I'm not soft any more."

"Well," Howard gave up, "have it your own way." But in his heart he felt she must soon realize that her father was a broken reed.

Rhinitis Is Common in Winter

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health,
New York City

THIS is the time of the year when catarrh and inflammations of the nose and throat are all too common. Some persons seem to have more than their share of these annoying conditions. They are extremely susceptible to slight changes in weather and exposure to cold and drafts. This weakness is usually the result of neglected chronic rhinitis.

"Rhinitis," as its name implies, is an irritation, inflammation or infection of the mucous membrane lining the nose and throat. The sufferer from rhinitis usually has a stuffiness in the nose and an irritating dryness of the throat.

As a rule there is difficulty in clearing the throat. The victim has an annoying dry cough. This can be traced to constant dripping of mucus into the throat. The trouble is more marked in the morning and clears up during the day. The cough may be severe and sometimes it indicates complications within the chest.

At some time or other most of us have suffered from a "running nose," with redness, irritation and marked discomfort of the upper air passage. This is the common form of acute rhinitis. It usually lasts for a few hours to a few days and disappears as the nasal discharge clears up.

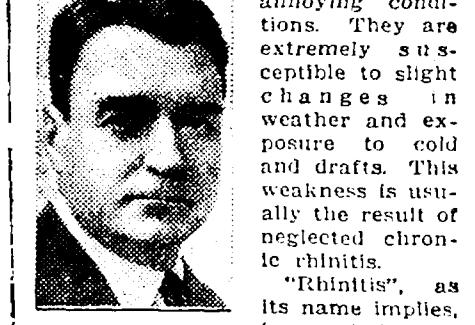

Chronic rhinitis is a persistent form of the disorder. It requires careful medication and treatment before cure is accomplished. Chronic rhinitis is usually associated with infection of the nasal sinuses or some deformity of the nose.

It is plain to see how neglect of this disorder may lead to serious complications. Such disturbances as rheumatism, heart disease, kidney disease and intestinal disorders are sometimes traced to the neglect of rhinitis.

In many instances the inflammation is not caused by infection, but, as I have said, is the result of some nasal deformity. Thickening of the bony tissue within the nose, a misplaced septum, or other nasal abnormality leads to irritation and congestion of the lining of the nose. This lowers the resistance of this delicate membrane against germs, and increases the liability of colds and infection.

Sufferers from chronic rhinitis should seek medical advice for the correction of all defects of the upper air passages. In addition to the necessary operation or treatment needed, it is important to bear in mind the value of a nourishing and well-balanced diet. There is no doubt that a faulty diet, deficient in certain minerals or vitamins, is a hindrance to good health and increases the susceptibility to nasal infections.

The diet should contain an abundant supply of fresh fruits, vegetables, cereals, cream, butter and eggs. Children who are afflicted with rhinitis should be given cod liver oil daily. Plenty of fresh air and sunlight, adequate hours of rest and proper bowel elimination are other helpful measures that must not be overlooked in the prevention of rhinitis and other infections of the upper air passages.

TULSA YOUTH'S STORY OF SHOOTING IS NEW SENSATION

JUDGE'S SON TELLS STORY

Says He Took Part in Plot In Effort To Save Daughter of Oil Man.

TULSA, Okla., Dec. 13.—Young Philip Kennamer's story of the slaying of John F. Gorrell Jr., Thanksgiving night, asserted to prevent a $20,000 kidnaping plot, created a new sensation today in the mystery that has driven members of Tulsa's young society set into hiding.

Kennamer, the 19-year-old son of Federal Judge Franklin C. Kennamer, said his plea will be one of self-defense in the kidnaping of Gorrell, a dental student. Kennamer is being held on a charge of murder.

Angered by Kennamer's refusal to go through a plot to extort $20,000 from Homer F. Wilcox, wealthy oil man, by kidnaping Wilcox's daughter, Virginia, Gorrell drew a small calibre pistol and tried to kill him, Kennamer said.

SHOT DURING FIGHT
Then the dental student was shot and killed in a fight for possession of the weapon, according to the prisoner's story.

Kennamer's detailed statement brought Sidney Born Jr., more closely into the picture. Young Born was found shot to death in an automobile last Sunday night. Born, in whose car Kennamer rode to the fatal appointment with Gorrell, knew of the kidnaping plot and also knew of Kennamer's decision to thwart it, according to the statement.

"Sidney was murdered, and I know it, and it might have been by one of three young men or some one in their employ," the Judge's son declared.

Following threats received by several of the state's leading witnesses, authorities today were guarding seven youths. One of these, Preston Cochran, 19-year-old son of a prominent attorney, was reported in hiding.

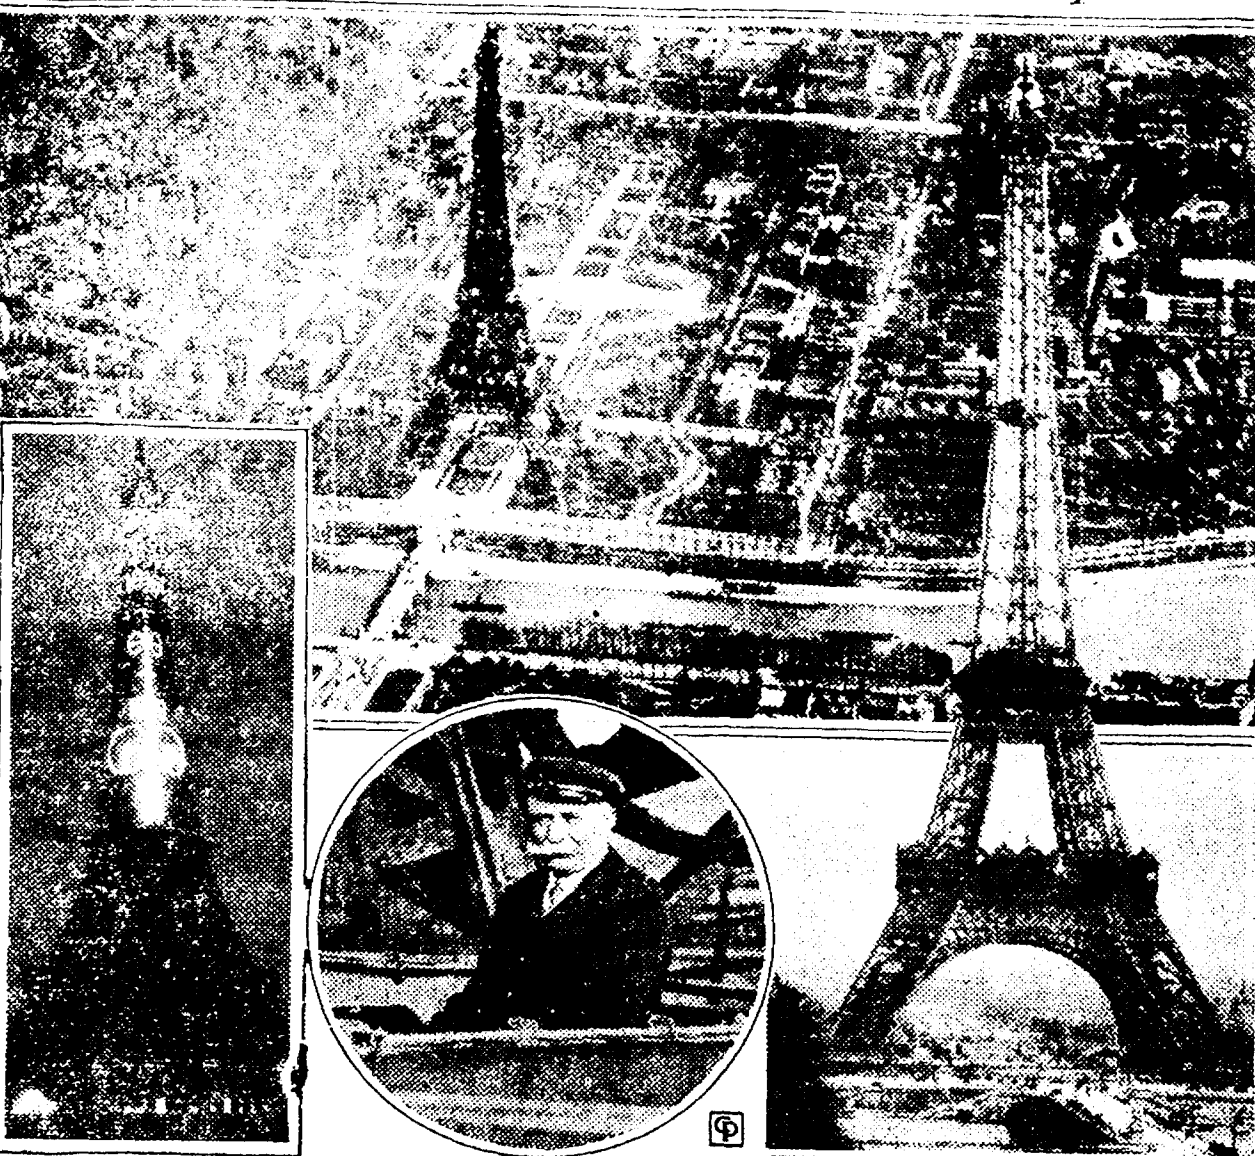

Concerning his part in the kidnaping plot Kennamer said:

"I never intended to go through with it. I got into it only to get evidence enough to stop the thing."

Gorrell had framed the kidnaping plot, according to the youth, and had planned to spirit Miss Wilcox away in an airplane. He learned of the scheme last September.

"I decided I would try and find out more about," he continued, "I

OUR YESTERDAYS When the Eiffel Tower Was Constructed As Feature of the 1889 Paris Exposition

Views of Eiffel Tower; center, below, Basile Teron, elevator operator at tower for more than 40 years.

OUTSTANDING AMONG the construction feats of the nineteenth century was the erection of the Eiffel Tower in the Champ de Mars, at Paris, by Alexandre Gustave Eiffel, noted French engineer. The tower was completed March 31, 1889, in time to serve as one of the features of the Paris exposition of that year. From the top of the tower, which is 854 feet (260 meters) above the ground, the view extends to a distance of about 85 miles. In the construction of the giant structure, more than 7,000 tons of steel were used, and the cost was estimated at $1,000,000. The tower in recent years has been used for scientific purposes. Problems involving wind pressure and currents have been studied from the tower and antennae have been suspended from it for wireless communication.

The law class is studying the relation between principal and agent and master and servant. The Economic class is discussing the tariff question in United States.

The Freshman General Science class are discussing Climatic influences of bodies of water. The Freshman English Classes are reading The Rhine of The Ancient Mariner and memorizing some quotations.

Home Economics—Miss Mettler
The Freshman girls have finished their breakfast unit and have begun a study of the kitchen and its care. This week they are making small Christmas gifts.

The second year girls are studying Home Management. They have had the study of the family laundry, choice of household equipment and the care of the various rooms of the house. Along with this they are having budgets—personal as well as family. Each girl is keeping a personal budget.

Athletic News—Boys A. A.
Since beginning practice a few weeks ago the boys have shown much improvement. They have hopes of making a good record this year with their first game at Atlanta. There is a strong feeling throughout the student body that they will have a team of which they may be proud.

The girls are anticipating some good games this year and are endeavoring to do all they can to make them so.

Walnut-twp basketball teams entertain Scioto this Friday night for their second game of the season. The girls' game should be close and worth your money. The boys' teams are both largely unknown quantities. All supporters are invited to attend the games starting at 7:30, prices 10c and 25c.

Party to Organize Senate, Doubtful About House; Bittering Is Leader.

COLUMBUS, Dec. 13.—Democrats elected to the House of Representatives of the 91st General assembly will caucus here on Dec. 10, Rep. Julian Schweller (D) Putnam-co, announced today. Schweller and Rep. J. Freer Bittinger (D) Ashland-co, will be the ranking members of the new House. Bittinger is a leading candidate for speaker.

House. Republicans will caucus here tomorrow to select their candidates for speaker and floor leader, meeting at the call of Rep. B. L. Cressy (R) Ashtabula-co, a candidate for speaker.

Sen. V. D. Emmons (R) Akron, has issued a call for Senate Republicans to caucus on Jan. 3. Senators W. H. Hermer (D) Huron-co, and John Fowler (D) Logan-co, ranking members, said the Senate Democrats probably would meet the same day.

Democrats, with a comfortable majority, will organize the Senate, but it is doubtful which party will elect the officers in the lower house where the Republicans will have 68 members and the Democrats 67.

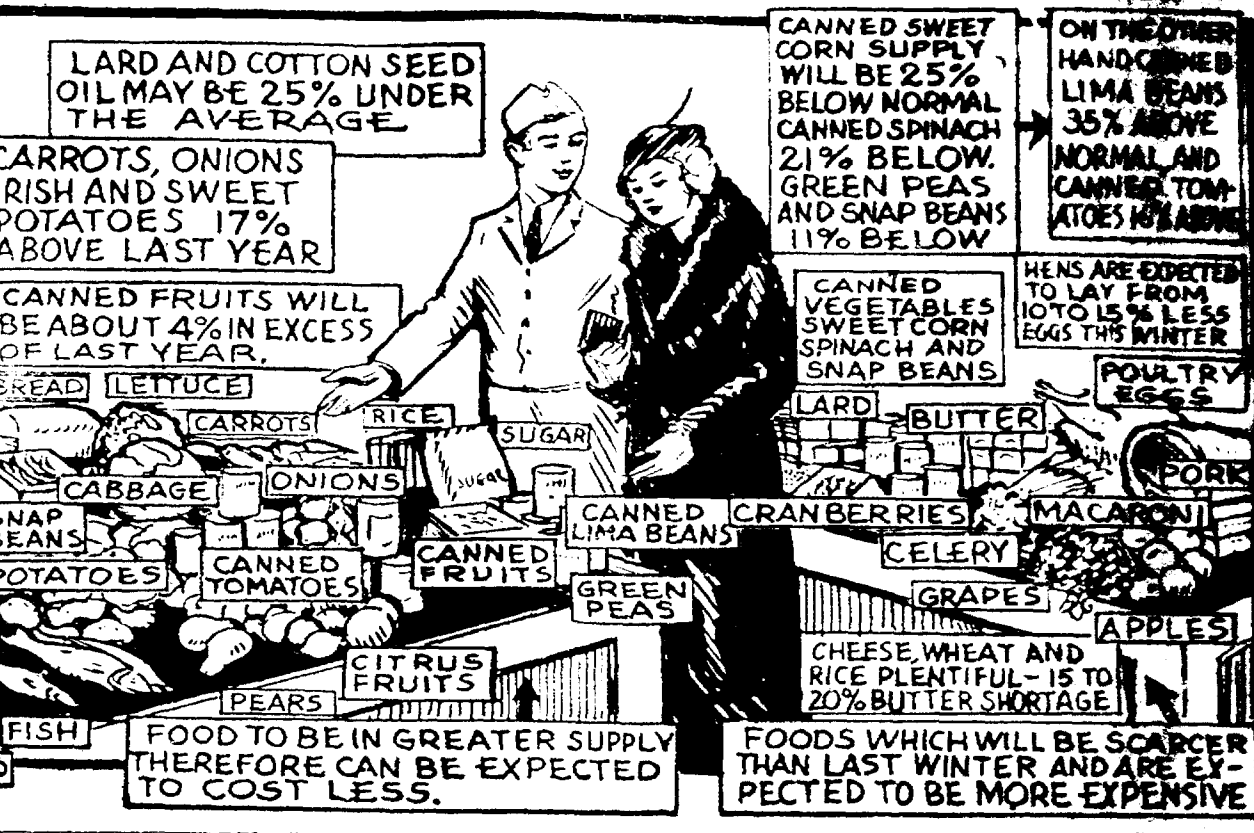

Rep. Schweller said the Democrats may be permitted to organize the House despite their being in the minority, because of the unwillingness of many Republicans to assume responsibility under a Democratic governor for control of a legislative body so evenly divided as to political affiliations.

REVIVAL PLANNED
A revival will begin at 7:30 p. m. Thursday at the Nazarene church, Pickaway and Walnut-sts, with services to be held each evening.

House in which Dreyfus spent most of his term.

By Central Press.

DEVIL'S ISLAND is a small, barren island off the coast of French Guiana. South America, about 30 miles northwest of Cayenne. It became famous through the condemnation there of Captain Alfred Dreyfus.

Dreyfus, a French military officer, was arrested in 1894 charged with having sold military secrets to a foreign power. Tried in secret court, he was sentenced to solitary confinement on the island.

On the island Dreyfus was treated with great severity, once being chained to his pallet for two months. He persistently denied his guilt, and one of his prominent defenders was the novelist Emile Zola. The captain finally was exonerated in 1899 following the suicide of an intelligence officer, confessed forger, Dreyfus' name to a document used in evidence.

The outcome of the Dreyfus case was hailed as a triumph over militarism in France.

Both the boys and girls are progressing well and but lately in need of players for orchestra. The two French horn flutes also have two bass horns, tenor saxophone, baritone and two clarinets. A tie between Turnesa and Espinosa was declared in the final round of the tournament. The two players were tied at 2-2 in the final round. The tournament was held in the city of Turnesa.

TANGLE JAN. 3

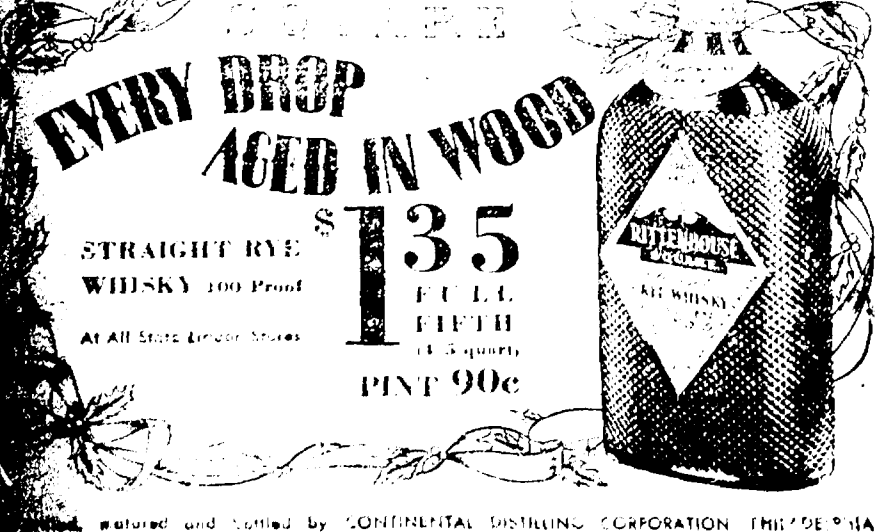

A tangle in the New Holland team was expected to stand out on the team representing that town. The Tigers defeated this team last year in a surprise.

Weeks Missouri Job

Harold (Red) Grange, leading coach for the job of head coach at University of Missouri, succeeded Frank Cardo, resigned. Harold (Red) Grange, once a "college coach" of the University of Illinois, now is formally accepted for the position. Grange has been a member of the American Quarter Horse Association since 1927.

WITTENHOUSE

Bill Hunt Brings Columbus Sharpshooters Here For Game Friday Evening; Herberholz to Stand Pat On Lineup.

Circleville's Tigers victorious in their initial start of the season against Williamsport last week and take on a real foe Friday evening in the C. A. C. gymnasium when Columbus Academy coached by Bill Hunt comes here.

The Academy team defeated Columbus last week and did a good job of it. The Tigers lost to Academy last year in a good game but the hands are believed much stronger than they were a year ago.

Hunt is recognized as one of the best basketball coaches in central Ohio and with a lot of good material should have a fine squad. The Academy crew plays more a professional type of basketball than most high school teams simply because Hunt teaches them that way.

Johnny Herberholz who did good work a week ago will again handle the whistle.

Coach Pete Herberholz is expected to stand pat on the starting lineup used a week ago. He had Kirwin and Henry at forwards, Grant at center and Jenkins and Speakman at guards. This crew handled the ball nicely and showed a real tendency except on a few occasions to sacrifice to a colleague in better position to take a peg at the bucket.

Herberholz has several good boys on the sidelines including Chuck Styers, Normie Coleman, Pricey and others.

On Saturday evening the cagers will travel to Groveport to meet the team representing that town. The Tigers defeated this team last year in a surprise.

BUCKS DEFEAT MARIETTA TEAM

MARIETTA, Dec. 13.—Ohio State university's basketball team is a good comparatively speaking as its football team as far as Marietta college is concerned. The Bucks beat the Marietta team 32-21 with Coach Hal Olson using 15 men and little Tippy Dye who came from this part of Ohio leading the offense.

Dye was a substitute but he topped the scorers and played a splendid floor game. Defensive work of Captain Butler of Ohio was also outstanding. He held Bowser, sharpshooting Marietta forward without a point. The failure of Buck giant center, to crash the scoring column also hurt the local's chances.

Berens and Reeves led the Ohio university cagers in a 52-20 defeat of Wilmington college at Wilmington Wednesday evening.

Coach Grover of Ohio used several stringers the greater part of the game.

N. HOLLAND WINS

New Holland's cage team stopped Muhlenberg 14-15 in an interesting game at New Holland Wednesday evening.

The New Holland girls also won, 18-12.

Records of the Ohio Dairy Herd Improvement Association show that a cow producing 400 pounds of butterfat a year requires little more than half as much feed to make 100 pounds of milk as a cow that makes 200 pounds of butterfat a year.

SHERIFF'S SALE OF CHATELAIN

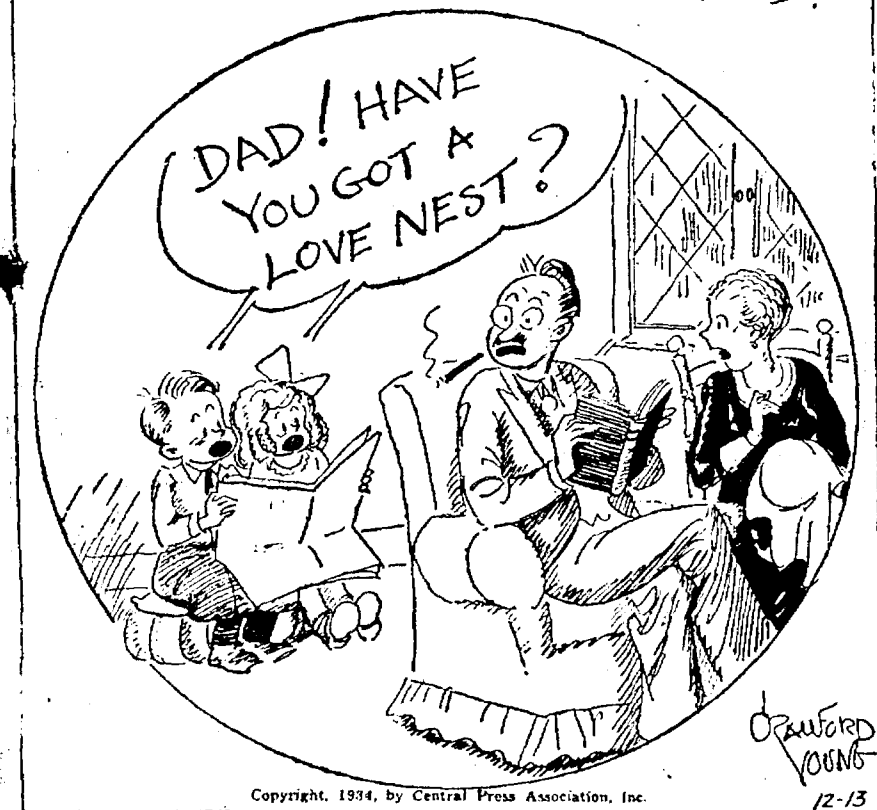

Court of Common Pleas, Pickaway County, Ohio. The Third National Bank of Circleville, Ohio, Plaintiff. L. W. Ours and John G. Ours, Defendants.

In pursuance of an Execution issued from the Clerk's office of the Court of Common Pleas, Pickaway County, Ohio, on the 25th day of November, 1934 and to be directed in the above entitled action, I, J. L. P. Sheriff of Pickaway County, Ohio, on Friday the 21st day of December, 1934, at 11 o'clock A. M. of said day, the following goods and chattels, to-wit:

When the ground is covered with snow birds cannot reach their main source of food supply. Thousands will die of starvation in a short time. Throw out bread and hang a piece of suet in a tree, or on a bush or on the family clothes pole—sunflower seed is a feed all birds relish, three millions, and increase in intangibles tax, one and a half millions.

None of the emergency tax measures remains in effect longer than one year, it being understood that the next legislative convening in January, will enact a new permanent state tax program.

It was Governor White's announced intention to sign the sales tax act today, along with a measure increasing the tax rate on intangibles one per cent and another re-acting the one-cent liquid fuel tax for one year, constituted the emergency tax program which the governor forced through a lame duck session of the legislature.

White achieved his most notable legislative triumph in compelling the assembly to submerge its prejudice against any new tax on incomes, forcing it to return to the capital and enact such measure after it adjourned last week, thinking its work was done.

"I would have much preferred an income tax to an increased intangibles tax," the governor commented. "However, the increase in the intangible tax is approximately equivalent in net results to the net income tax proposed by me, because there are no deductions or exemptions in the intangible tax law."

I shall now approve the sales tax with the knowledge that by doing so our schools and local governments will be saved from bankruptcy and chaos in 1935.

"I know now that the poor will be fed and clothed and our children given the opportunity of a free education which is the birthright of every American child and that the safety and health of our people will be guaranteed."

UP TO ASSEMBLY

He said he was pleased that the legislature "has agreed to the demand of our people by accepting an increased tax upon the owners of intangible property" and recognized that there are discrepancies in the emergency tax program which the 91st General Assembly must iron out.

Effective date of the sales tax, which Governor White fought for two years to have the legislature enact, is Jan. 1, but that does not allow sufficient time to set up the far-flung machinery for collection of the tax, according to Dargusch, the tax commissioner.

He said contracts for the printing of half a billion (500 million) of one-cent and other small denominations, enough to last Ohio merchants approximately 60 days, will be let within the next two or three days.

That many receipts, he explained,

Snowfall Costs Chicago $50,000

This is just one of hundreds of automobiles stalled in downtown Chicago as the worst blizzard in 30 years swept the Windy City.

ed, will cost the state about $50,000 and will require about 186,000 pounds of paper. The receipts will be purchased in advance by every retail merchant selling articles not exempt under the sales tax. In the presence of the customer, he will tear the receipt in two, giving the buyer half and retaining the other, thus completing payment of the tax.

Articles exempted from the sales levy are milk, bread, newspapers, feeds, seeds and fertilizer. There will be no tax on professional services, such as those of the physician, dentist or lawyer, or on rents.

Sales tax receipts will be purchased by the retailer from his county treasurer exclusively until the tax commission has time to set up additional agents in the more populous counties. Each merchant must carefully estimate the amount of business he expects to do during a certain period and purchase enough tax receipts to cover all purchases. The law forbids him to buy or borrow receipts from other retailers if he unexpectedly exhausts his own supply.

TAKES SHORT TIME

It took the Senate, which previously had defeated an income tax, only a few hours to rush through the one per cent increase on intangibles once it got down to business. The measure was then forced through the lower house in record time.

Since the intangibles tax measure received barely enough Senate votes to insure passage, 17 administration leaders in the lower house took no chances of a fatal slip that might have ensued had the house made even one amendment, which would have necessitated another Senate vote to concur in the alteration.

Rep. P. E. Ward (R) Chardon, author of the defeated income tax, sought valiantly to write in amendments more clearly limiting the one per cent increase to one year and to exempt the first $500 of income from intangibles from the levy. But Rep. Keith Lawrence, Democratic floor leader, after warning the House of the probable consequences in the Senate, succeeded in defeating the Ward amendments.

Ward's $500 exemption proposal was termed the "widows' amendment." Its purpose was to lift the tax from widows whose only income may be from stocks and bonds, who Ward said, should not be made to pay a tax intended to "soak the rich."

HALF MILLION ILL OF MALARIA FEVER

COLOMBO, Ceylon, Dec. 13.—Half a million Singaporeans languished near death today as the worst epidemic of malaria in twenty years ravaged the island.

Tales of misery due to the total lack, in some sections, of food and medicine poured in from some areas ninety per cent of the population were ill and scores of deaths were reported.

Between 60,000 and 70,000 victims have been treated in hospitals, and the British government is rushing medical supplies from Colombo and major ports in India.

3-ACT SHOW CAN AGAIN BE SEEN TONIGHT

"Crashing Thru" Is Different From Usual Run of Plays; Characters Good.

"Crashing Thru", witnessed by a small crowd, will be presented again this evening at the Grand theatre under the auspices of the Royal Neighbors of America.

The three-act musical comedy was well presented by the cast selected. Miss Ann Wilson is the director.

The production was different from the usual run of plays. Each act was preceded by a prologue in which Stanley Peters, Mrs. Adolphus Pearce and Gion Pearce were grandpa, grandma and grandson respectively.

The scenes which followed the prologues portrayed the story one of the above characters was telling.

The first act showed the time of grandpa's and grandma's marriage in 1898 and included songs and dances of that period by choruses. Edward Greeno, Marjorie Brown, Betty Brown and John Hegele were the characters in this scene.

The second act was set in a radio station and told how grandpa's and grandma's son Tom Jackson, Jr. portrayed by Proctor Baughman, tried to get a good program for the Collapsible Bathing hour in which Forgon, splendidly played by H. C. Mooney, was interested. If Tom made be financially able to marry his sweetheart Betty, enacted by Dorothy Green.

Characters appearing for auditions included Roy Atwell in the person of Edward Ashworth; Mae West, Blanche Mutschman; Grace Allen, Grace Young; Baron Munchausen, Harold Dowler; Jimmy Durante, Berlin Noble. All were well chosen for their parts. Mary Bell the office girl was ably portrayed by Miss Wilcox.

The last act showed how the marriage place in 1938.

Tom in this scene is enacted by Bill Hegele and Bernice Shasteen was Nancy his sweetheart. Edgar, Bob, Carter was the bridegroom-to-be. Several inspectors added to the fun in this act including Harry Steinhauser, Ernest Weller, Harold Dowler, Charles Kirkpatrick, Malcolm Russell, Gordon Dunkle and John Neuding.

Appearing in the choruses throughout the play were Theda Anderson, Leona Pierce, Eleanor Pierce, Mildred Rowland, Katherine Green, Bernice Grooms, Mary Hall, Margaret Butler, Maxine Niles, Rosemary Neuding, Maxine Betts, Margaret Riegel, Mary Burghwell, Virginia Brown, Eileen Brown, Betty Conrad, Marjorie Westenhaver, Harriet Berry, Arabelle Thorn, Marcelle Kerr, Cecil Andrews, Loren Carothers, Gaylord Greenlee, Kenneth Davis and Frank Wilkerson.

WILEY POST FAILS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—Wiley Post, of "round-the-world" flight fame, failed in his attempt of Dec. 7 to break the world's altitude record for airplanes, the National Aeronautic association announced.

Post, at Oklahoma City, when informed he had failed, said: "I'll try it again."

The altitude reached was not disclosed by the N. A. A., but the federation aeronautique internationale stated that Post, in order to officially return the record, now held by Commander Donati of Italy at 47,352, to this country, must climb 656 feet higher into the stratosphere, or to a height of 48,008.
